Shortly after two o'clock a thunder storm hovered over Boston. The heavy wind which proceeded the storm gave Boston the first relief of the day.

One death and many prostrations were caused in Boston today by the heat, this being the hottest day of the year and one of the hottest for many years.

The weather bureau at Washington made the interesting announcement that the heat wave is due to "Canadian Low." "Bermuda High" was blamed for the recent heat wave which held the Middle West in a grip for a long time.

"Canadian Low," the weather man says, means that low air pressure is developing in the Canadian Northwest, and this forces hot winds from the South over the East and as far as the Rockies.

Daniel Conkley, fifty years of age, living at No. 7½ High street, Milton, fell dead today in front of 1191 Washington street, Dorchester. Dr. Joseph O'Brien of Dorchester avenue, pronounced it a case of heart failure, caused by the intense heat.

Boston started to break heat records at an early hour. The upward

FOUR STEAMERS REPORTED SUNK

London, Aug. 8.—A Lloyds dispatch from Stockholm today reports the sinking of the Swedish steamship Vera, 2,508 tons, by a mine or submarine. The steamer went down off Finngrunder lightship. The Vera hailed from Gefle.

Also a dispatch to Lloyds reported the sinking of the British steamer Trident, but it has not been confirmed. The Trident, a vessel of 2,129 tons, hailed from Newcastle.

A wireless dispatch states that the British steamer Kanawha, from Halifax, has on board the crew of the torpedoed liner Spiral.

Lloyds report also the sinking of the Greek steamship Achilleus by a submarine. She was a vessel of 843 tons, hailing from Piraeus.

SHARP FIGHTING ON SALONICA FRONT

Salonica, Aug. 8.—French and British forces on the Greek frontier are in contact with the Bulgarians, and there has been severe fighting.

"DIVER" IN BAY OF FUNDY

Berne, Aug. 8.—According to a report received here today the Berlin Tageblatt prints a dispatch saying that the German merchant submarine Bremen, sister ship to the Deutschland, has been sunk through an accident to her machinery.

A short time ago it was reported in the Berlin press that the Bremen was "missing."

There were two important developments today in the mystery of the German submarine merchantman Bremen:

1—A submarine was reported off Cutler, Me., a few miles from Eastport.

2—Announcement came from Washington tha, the Eastern Forwarding Company, which loaded the Deutschland, is shipping nickel and rubber to a New England port, presumably to be taken back to Germany by the Bremen.

MAY MAKE PORT TODAY.

The possibility that the Bremen would make a New England port was strengthened when Paul G. L. Hilken of Baltimore, agent of the german undersea line, left Baltimore for New London, Ct. Shipping experts take this to mean that the Bremen may dock at New London in a day or so.

The report from Eastport follows on the heels of the report from Machias that two submarines had been seen off the coast.

Shipping experts figure that if the submarine which was sighted off Maine was bound for Boston she would make port late today.

Scores of parties in motor and sail boats cruised about the lower harbor today in hopes of getting a glimpse of the Bremen. Some of the parties started out at daybreak.

Disbelievers in the Bremen theory today said they thought the submarines sighted off the Maine coast are British vessels sent down from Halifax or St. John on the lookout for the Bremen.

SIGHTED OFF MAINE.

Today's telegram from Eastport read:

"Submarine sighted off Cutler today. Current report is that vessel is the Bremen, bound for Portland."

Cutler is nearer the Canadian side of the Bay of Fundy than Eastport, where coast guards reported that they saw two submarines yesterday, both proceeding west at about ten knots speed.

Seafaring men are inclined to doubt that a German submarine would venture into the Bay of Fundy, almost Canadian waters, and dotted with

RUSSIANS CAPTURE 10,500

Berlin, Aug. 8.—The German War Office today admits a further retreat by the Teuton armies in Galicia.

By International News Service.

Petrograd, Aug. 8.—All along the line in Galicia the crashing blows of the Russian are winning them fresh ground. The Russian War Office announced today that the Austro-Hungarians south of the Dneister River were compelled to retreat over a wide front.

Southwest of Kolomea the Teutons defending the Stanislau railway were routed and 2,000 captured.

The Russians also advanced along the Sereth south of Brody. In battles in that region on Saturday and Sunday the Russians captured 160 officers, 8,415 men, four cannon and nineteen machine guns.

The official report reads:

"We advanced on the Sereth fortifying our newly captured positions. We captured, in battles on Saturday and Sunday, 166 officers, 8,415 men, four cannon, nineteen machine guns and eleven trench mortars.

"South of the Dneister the enemy was driven back along the whole line from Tlumacz and Ottynia. Eastwards of the Dneister, we captured a chain of heights.

"Southwest of Kolomea, on the Stanislau-Lemberg railway, the enemy was routed. We took 2,000 German prisoners and captured some heavy guns and machine guns."

Berlin Admits Retreat of Armies in Galicia.

By International News Service.

Berlin, Aug. 8.—Fighting was reported from all parts of the Somme front in the official report issued by the German War Office today. There was bitter hand-to-hand fighting, which, the War Office stated, was generally in favor of the Germans.

Attacks were delivered by both British and French forces.

A withdrawal of the Teutonic forces in Galicia was admitted. The official report follows:

"West front—From south of the Labassee canal to a point in the vicinity of Loos there has been lively firing.

"Between Thiepval and the Somme, especially near Pozieres and Ballencourt-le-Petit and south of Maureps, the enemy continued to attack which led to bitter hand-to-hand fighting, but, generally speaking this was decided in our favor.

"Near Pozieres and east of Hem the fighting continues. Several hundred prisoners were brought in.

"A British aeroplane fell into our hands southeast of Cambrai.

Sunday Temple Quadruple That Solomon Built

Billy Sunday's tabernacle, for which ground will be broken tomorrow on the old baseball grounds, Huntington avenue, at 2 p. m., will be four times as large as Solomon's Temple.

Former Mayor William E. Blodgett, of Woburn, chairman of the tabernacle committee, will make the opening address.

"There's one new thing about the tabernacle—it will have walls of hollow fire blocks," said Chairman Blodgett. "It will be 395 feet long by 245 feet wide, with a height of 37 feet in the centre. It will be the best Sunday tabernacle and the biggest ever erected for this cause.

"There will be thirty to forty entrances, and it will cost between $35,000 to $40,000. It will have 300 steel columns. It will be four times as large as Solomon's Temple."

DOCTOR INJURED IN AUTO CRASH

Dr. Nathan N. Levins of No. 39 Chambers street was severely injured today when an automobile in which he was driving was struck by an auto truck owned by Fellows & Sons of Manchester, N. H. The truck was driven by Wilfred Laviene of No. 3 Pioneer street, Cambridge. The accident occurred at the corner of Dingley and Commercial streets, Cambridge. Dr. Levins was thrown out and his auto knocked onto a vacant lot.

TRAINMEN VOTE TO STRIKE TO GET DEMANDS

New York, Aug. 8.—Officials of the organizations of railway employes known as the "Big Four" announced today that the men had voted in favor of a strike unless the demands for an eight-hour day and time and one-half for overtime are granted.

Approximately 400,000 workmen are affected by the vote, the counting of which was completed last night. The organizations which voted upon the strike question are the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, the Order of Railway Conductors, and the Order of Firemen and Enginemen.

ANNOUNCED BY LEADERS.

The result of the referendum as announced by the executives of the various organizations in the "Big Four" follows:

Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers (Southeastern territory for a strike, 3,872, or 98 per cent.; Western territory, 9,035, or 99 per cent.; Eastern territory, 9,464, or 94.8 per cent.

Order of Firemen and Enginemen—Total vote 70,652, or 94 per cent., in favor of a strike.

Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen—For a strike, 124,852; against strike, 4,216; no percentage given.

Order of Railway Conductors—For a strike, 87.5 per cent. Total vote for strike, 34,346.

JOINT MEETING HELD.

The railroad was not included in the vote of the order of conductors, but it was said to be a small and unimportant one. The announcements were made by the following heads of the organizations:

Warren S. Stone, for the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers; W. G. Lee, for the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen; A. B. Garretson, for the Order of Railway Conductors, and W. S. Carter, for the Order of Firemen and Enginemen.

The announcements were made at a joint meeting of representatives of the unions and the railroad managers.

2 BOYS SAVE MAN FROM DROWNING

An unidentified man was rescued from drowning in the old Arlington Heights reservoir, near the Arlington line in Lexington, by Richard H. Griffin, sixteen years old, and James Harry of Arlington Heights.

The man told the boys that he had been seized with a cramp while in the deep water off "The Point."

FAILS TO ARRIVE AT HANGAR

Despatches from Paris today state that Norman Prince, son of Frederick H. Prince, the Boston banker, who has since the beginning of the war been one of the most daring airmen connected with the French aviation corps, is missing.

The Paris despatches say that Prince has failed to return his machine to his hangar after a long scouting trip.

ATTACKED ZEPPELIN.

Within the past twenty-four hours word reached Boston of one of the greatest exploits Prince has performed since he joined the French aviation corps. This was his attack on a huge Zeppelin single-handed.

According to the dispatch, Prince was making a flight near the enemy lines when he sighted a Zeppelin coming toward him. He immediately sent his machine up into the air, and, when he passed over the Zeppelin he began firing bomb after bomb at the huge machine.

Many of the bombs hit their mark and, as the Zeppelin began to settle, Prince lowered his plane and with one final bomb sent the Zeppelin to the ground a total wreck.

ALWAYS A VICTOR.

Young Prince has had many stirring adventures since he decided to cast his fate with the allies. He has been in many air battles with German flyers and he has always managed to come out victorious.

Twice he has been honored by the French government for his extraordinary daring as a birdman. Recently he received an official citation for two valuable articles on military aviation.

Last Winter Prince returned to America on a furlough and visited his parents in Boston. While Prince was in this country Secretary of State Lansing was asked to intern him as a member of the armed forces of one of the belligerents.

When he sailed again for France he took with him his younger brother, Frederick H. Prince, Jr.

Aviator Prince gained fame throughout Europe when he piloted a bombarding squadron, and in nine days made ten extremely long attacks. His work at that time was commented on throughout all the military camps of Europe.

LOST EIGHT AEROPLANES.

A short time later dispatches announced that Prince had lost his eighth aeroplane since the war started. When home here in Boston he said that he had already worn out ten extensive aeroplane engines.

Frequently in the past few months Prince has been mentioned in dispatches from Paris. He has been in more battles than any other American citizen serving for the allies, but he has managed to come out of every fight unharmed.

CASEMENT MURDERED, DECLARES HIS SISTER

New York, Aug. 8.—"My brother, Sir Roger Casement, was judicially murdered to satisfy the bloodlust of the English master," said Mrs. Agnes Newman in the first interview she has granted since the trial and execution of her brother. She said:

I want the American people to know that my brother was condemned the moment he was arrested. There never was any doubt of the outcome of the trial. Mr. Doyle, Sir Roger's counsel, told me that when he returned. In fact there was no need of a trial.

I did, however, hope that the intercession of America might induce the British government to show clemency.

The defence was not permitted to produce evidence that would have proved my brother's innocence. The British authorities refused Mr. Doyle permission to go to Germany and obtain the testimony of essential witnesses.

They would have proved that my brother did not go to Ireland to promote or lead the uprising. He went there to stop it. Ke believed that for the Irish volunteers, unarmed, to rise against the trained soldiery of England with their ample supply of rifles and munitions, their machine guns and artillery, would simply result in slaughter.

He was not aware that the volunteers had arms and ammunition, nor was he aware that an order had been issued to force the volunteers to disarm. He only knew in Berlin that an uprising was planned so he induced the Germans to send him on a submarine. The submarine was unarmed, without a gun or a torpedo.

My brother knew nothing about the German steamer Aud which, loaded with rifles, machine guns and cartridges, was sunk. Other Irish leaders probably did, but my brother did not.

REBUFFED SUGGESTION.

The German authorities wanted him to take the fifty-four members of the Irish brigade with him but he refused. He felt they would come to harm so he was accompanied only by two, Bailey and Monteith.

The first thing my brother did on landing at Tralee was to send word to MacNeill in Dublin, urging against the uprising. It was he who inspired the demobilization order to the Irish volunteers.

Had my brother known all the facts of the situation he would not probably have tried to prevent the uprising. His only thought was to prevent a massacre of the people whom he loved.

Mrs. Newman gave out for the first time a letter she received from Casement when he was in Berlin.

The day before starting on the trip that ended with his death he wrote from Berlin. It is dated April 11, and is the last communication she had from him. It reads:

My dear old girl:

I am going away on a long journey and may not be able to write you again for a long time —perhaps very long. I have often thought of you of late and longed to see you again, but it has not been possible. You did quite right to go to America and I was all wrong. A friend here will see you for me later on and give you some things.

LIVED FOR IRELAND.

I do hope I may see you safe and well when the war is over, but no one can say what will happen these dreadful dark days. It is all dark and black.

All my thoughts have been for Ireland, but I fear I have done very little, certainly not what I tried.

Countess Blucher, you remember her, is near me. I saw her lately and Count Blucher, and they can tell you something of me, and also another friend here. ——, is my staunchest friend over on your side.

Give the dear wee Gee my love and kisses, and Elsie, too, both of them—I may not be able to write for a very long time as all the ways are closed and it is so hard to get letters across.

I trust if this letter is intercepted some kind heart will send it on to you in the end that you may know how much I thought of you and felt for you in these dark, awful days. I only hope now for peace and goodwill and all this dreadful nightmare of horror gone away.

Your own,
"SCOGGIE."

British in Rear Guard Action with Turks.

By International News Service.

London, Aug. 8.—Rear-guard actions are being fought between mounted British troops and the Turks that were defeated at El Ruman, east of the Suez Canal, the War Office stated today in an official report on Egyptian operations.

The Turks, after their precipitate retirement from El Ruman, entrenched themselves six miles east of Katia (El Katie), where detachments are evidently trying to hold up the advance of the British until the main Turkish force can be reorganized.

Official dispatches from Lieutenant-General Sir Archibald James Murray, commander-in-chief of the British forces in Egypt, state that the battle field at El Ruman is being cleared of the rifles, ammunition and other war supplies that the Turks abandoned in their retreat.

It is also officially announced that Port Said and Suez have been bombarded by Turkish aeroplanes, but that the damage was immaterial and the casualties slight.

(Port Said lies at the point where the Suez Canal joins the Mediterranean. Suez lies at the southern extremity of the canal where it joins the Gulf of Suez.)

WAR SUMMARY

The tide of success in the constant ebb and flow of the Verdun battle is with the Germans again today, the Paris communique admitting that the Crown Prince's forces, after a desperate attack, have penetrated the French position at Thiaumont Work, that bitterly contested outpost that had been lost and retaken many times in this greatest battle of history.

North of the Somme, however, the French have made further progress, Paris says, advancing their lines from Hardecourt.

The British appear to be hanging desperately to their newly won positions about Pozieres, in spite of terrific German counter attacks, and, according to today's official report, have advanced east of Tirones Wood.

There is further evidence that the allies are about to complete their circle of offensive fighting in the news from Salonica that the French and Serbs are in contact with the Bulgars on the Greek frontier. A forward movement of the allies in this theatre of war, where it is understood they have a force of 400,000 or 500,000 men, would add to the difficulties of the central powers materially, as it would probably compel Bulgaria to call for help from Turkey and Austria, both of which countries have their hands full at present.

There is not much change in the general situation on the eastern front. With Field Marshal von Hindenburg in supreme command of the Teutonic forces from Riga to Tarnopal, Berlin expects an effective checking of the Russian offensive, but Petrograd experts insist that the German field marshal has not the resources in man power to match the new Russian armies in their westward drive.

POLICE STILL SEEK HINGHAM FUGITIVE

The Hingham police have failed to find any trace of Doctnikco Albanese, who is wanted on a charge of killing John Aprille on Sunday evening. Aprille was stabbed to death in the yard of his home, following a quarrel with Albanese, and two other Italians who attempted to separate the men were painfully cut about the body and legs. The police are continuing their search.

FROM CHICAGO TO NORWAY BY WATER

By International News Service.

Chicago, Aug. 8.—An ocean steamship leaves South Chicago today for Rotterdam and thence to Norway. She is the Norsal, Norwegian, a 460-foot steamship of steel built in South Chicago, and will take a cargo of grain to Montreal. It was reported that she will discharge her cargo at Montreal and take on arms and ammunition for the allies. The ship, commanded by Captain Harbitz, is the first Norwegian merchantman on the Great Lakes.

NO AMERICANS ON TORPEDOED LINER

Washington, Aug. 8.—The State Department today announced that it had received reports from several American consuls at Italian ports, stating that it had been definitely established that there were no Americans aboard the Italian steamer Letimbro when she was shelled and torpedoed by a submarine.

SUBMARINE SIGHTED OFF EASTPORT

lighthouses maintained by the Canadian government.

Some even are skeptical that the object seen off Cutler is a thick fog could be a submarine.

The Canadian government has declared that no allied submarine or submarines are known to be off the coast of Maine. Officials at Washington say there are no United States submarines in that vicinity. Therefore the mystery grew.

Captain Small of the Cross Island coast guard station, near Machiasport, who reported that he had observed two submarines about five miles off his station, headed east, was positive today that the objects he watched through a marine glass were submersible. So, too, is Surfman Lowell W. Dunn, who was on lookout duty at the coast guard station, and was first to sight the things at sea.

Captain Small explained today that he could not understand how the things could be German submersibles and in the Bay of Fundy, unless their skippers chose to slip in there to reach the safety of the United States three-mile limit, planning to coast along to the west, always within the three-mile limit, and ready at the least warning sign to dash into the handiest port, perhaps Portland, Gloucester or Boston.

British Advance in Bitter Fight East of Trones

By SYDNEY B. CAVE.

International News Service Staff Correspondent.

London, Aug. 8.—Fresh attacks east of Trones Wood have won more ground for the British in the direction of the important road junction of Combles, says the British War Office in its official report this afternoon on operations along the Somme front.

Pushing forward under cover of darkness, the British pressed back the Germans just north of Hill No. 132, where the British and French armies on the Somme first joined.

Fighting which developed in the outskirts of Guillemont is still in progress.

Trones Wood is about two miles east of Combles and has been the scene of some of the bloodiest fighting in the allies' big drive. Guillemont is about one-half of a mile northeast of the wood.

The official report follows:

"The enemy, after five fruitless attempts yesterday north and east of Pozieres, did not make any fresh attacks, but maintained a heavy artillery fire on this front and other portions of the battle area.

"During the night we pushed forward east of Trones Wood. Fighting on the outskirts of Guillemont near the station is proceeding.

"On the eastern portion of the Leipzig salient the enemy attempted an attack with bombs, but was driven back without difficulty.

"North of Roclincourt two of our raiding parties successfully entered German lines and blew up dugouts.

"Ten enemy aeroplanes endeavored to cross our lines yesterday on a bombing expedition. They were cut off by one of our offensive patrols. Four of the enemy machines scattered and returned pursued by us. Two hostile aeroplanes were forced to descend behind their lines."

GERMANS RUSHING SUPPLIES AT MONS

By International News Service.

Amsterdam, Aug. 8.—German military trains are passing through Mons night and day, says the Echo De Belge, transporting enormous amounts of material. The Mons station was bombarded by a squadron of French aviators last week.

GAIN FOR GERMANS IN BATTLE AT THIAUMONT

By CHARLES F. BERTELLI,

International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Paris, Aug. 8.—German forces, after terrific fighting, have succeeded in penetrating the French position at Thiaumont Work, on the Verdun front, it was admitted in the official communique issued by the French War Office this afternoon.

Other attacks on the Fleury-Thiaumont line were checked by the French.

North of the Somme the French have made further progress.

North of Hardecourt in the region of Hill No. 123 the French advanced, capturing forty prisoners.

In the sector of Monacu Farm, south of Hardecourt, the Germans made assaults last night against the newly won French positions, but the attacks broke down under the French fire.

ATTACK GUILLEMONT.

The text of the official communique follows:

"North of the Somme our infantry, operating on the right of the British troops, in the course of an attack directed by our allies against Guillemont, made good an advance east of Hill 130, north of Hardecourt, and captured forty prisoners.

"East of the Monacu farm the Germans attempted twice this morning to recapture trenches conquered by us yesterday, but they were repulsed. Each attempt was frustrated by the fire of our infantry.

"The enemy was forced to return to his works, leaving numerous corpses before our lines. The number of prisoners captured by us yesterday in this region was 250, of whom two were officers.

"On the right bank of the Meuse, a bombardment was renewed during the night and attained extreme intensity. On the Thiaumont-Fleury front, at 5 o'clock this morning, the Germans launched against our positions from the village of Fleury to the north of the Thiaumont Work a series of powerful attacks with large effectives, accompanied by barrage fire with their 210-centimetre guns reaching to the rear of our lines.

BATTLE CONTINUES.

"All these attacks were stopped along the Fleury road and in the village by our machine gun fire, which caused heavy losses to the enemy. The Germans succeeded in gaining a foothold in the Thiaumont Work after a bloody battle, which is still continuing.

"In the Vosges, detachments of the enemy that tried to enter our trenches near Senones were easily dispersed by our rifle fire."

ITALIANS CLEAR THE ISONZO RIGHT

By International News Service.

London, Aug. 8.—The right bank of the Isonzo River, the most important section of the front that stretches across the Austro-Italian theatre of war, has practically been cleared of Austro-Hungarian soldiers, says a Rome wireless dispatch received here today. The Italians have occupied a number of new positions on the Isonzo.

The dispatch adds that the number of Austro-Hungarian prisoners in the hands of the Italians has been considerably increased and the Teutons have begun to destroy a number of villages around Gorizia as though preparing to evacuate it.

2 DEATHS OF BABY PLAGUE

Washington, Aug. 8. — President Wilson today signed the bill appropriating $135,000 for the use of the public health service in combatting the infantile paralysis epidemic.

Two deaths and six new cases of infantile paralysis were reported to the State Board of Health today.

The fatal cases are Louis Westover of No. 39 Oakland street, Amesbury, and Edward W. Bresnahan, eight, of No. 181 Linwood avenue, Newton.

Other cases reported are Paul Yoegan, No. 24 Jones road, Revere; James Bratt, No. 26 Stafford street, Lawrence; Marie Jean, No. 47 Dracut street, Lowell; John Lynn, eight, No. 7 Payson avenue, Northampton; Howard Jillson, Millers Falls; Hetz Levine, No. 5 Taubert avenue, Pittsfield.

The new deaths and six cases make a total of 144 cases in Massachusetts since June 1.

State health authorities admit there is a prevalence of the disease as compared with other years, but they say it has by no means reached the proportion of an epidemic.

New York Doctors Ask Blood of Former Victims

By International News Service.

New York, Aug. 8.—Physicians interested in the fight to check the infantile paralysis epidemic in the city today call upon former plague victims to give some of their blood to be used as an antitoxin.

The present supply of this valuable serum, which is accomplishing such wonderful results, is very low in all hospitals, and consequently an appeal is made to those who, because they have passed through it, know just how terrible the disease is, to help in the effort to save others by giving up a small quantity of their blood.

The qualifications necessary are:

If you have had infantile paralysis before June 7, 1916.

If you are now in good health.

If you are not infected with tuberculosis or blood taint.

What those who respond to this appeal should do:

Go to the Willard Parker Hospital, foot of East Fifteenth street, and ask for Dr. Abraham Zingher. He will draw from a vein in your arm as much blood as you can spare without harm to yourself. Those who wish may have a local anaesthetic. It leaves no disfigurement. The wound is scarcely visible and does not have to be bound.

The infantile paralysis epidemic assumed more threatening proportions within the last twenty-four hours. The number of deaths reported today were fifty-two, eight more than yesterday, and the new cases 185, compared with 145 for the preceding day.

The total number of cases to date is 5,317 and the deaths 1,195.

SALEM POLICE HEAD 'ARRESTED' IN TEST

Marshal C. F. Harrington of Salem is now convinced that his officers are on the job every minute when it comes to speeding autoists. He has been receiving complaints from people living in the vicinity of Salem Willows that reckless drivers were making the Willows their stamping ground. Last night Marshal Harrington got a high-powered car, placed extra large lights on it and went tearing down through the Willows. He was twice stopped. The second time he was about to be arrested when his identity was revealed.

Dear Uncle Ken—If you don't come to the wedding it won't be a real wedding. ANNE.

IF LITTLE babes.
WERE LIKE cats.
AND DIDN'T open their eyes.
FOR NINE days.
I WOULD have seen Anne.
JUST EIGHT days.
BEFORE SHE saw me.
BUT THEY'RE not.
AND SO it was.
THAT I saw Anne.
AND ANNE saw me.
WHEN SHE was so small.
SHE COULDN'T do anything.
BUT SQUIRM.
AND SHE hadn't any name.
AND I remember.
I CALLED her "it."
BUT AFTER a while.
SHE GREW up.
TO HAVE a name.
AND TO love her uncle.
"A MILLION."
AND TO put her little arms.
AROUND HIS neck.
AND HUG him.
AS HARD as she could.
AND TELL him.
WHEN SHE got big.
SHE WAS going to marry him.
AND AFTER a while.
SHE GOT big.
AND FORGOT.
AND A young man.
CAME ALONG.
AND ONE night.
SOMEWHERE.
IN THE quiet.
OF A California night.
HE TOLD her.
WHAT SHE knew.
AND THE next day.
SHE TOLD me.
AND MADE me promise.
I'D GO to the wedding.
AND HERE I am.
ACROSS A continent.
AND WHEN I promised.
I DIDN'T know.
I WAS coming here.
AND I took her letter.
TO MR. Hearst.
AND TOLD him.
ABOUT THE promise.
AND HE read the letter.
AND SMILED.
AND SAID.
"IT SEEMS necessary.
"YOU SHOULD go."
AND I said. "Yes."
AND THAT was all.
AND I'M going.
TO SEE her married.
AND HURRY back.
AND FOR fear.
THAT YOUD forget me.
I'M WRITING some things.
FOR MY column.
WHILE I'M gone.
AND I'LL write some more.
AND SEND them back.
AND GOODBY.
AND GOD bless you.
I THANK you.

MRS. AUERBACH'S WILL IS PROBATED

Mrs. Annie T. Auerbach of Brookline, in her will filed at the Probate Court at Dedham, leaves $1,000 in trust as an endowment for a memorial bed in a public hospital to be designated by the executors. One-third of the residue of her estate she leaves to her son, Herbert T. Auerbach of Buffalo, New York, one-third to another son, Frederick S. Auerbach of Brookline and the other third to her two grandchildren, sons of the late Junius T. Auerbach.

MEXICO HOPES FOR EARLY SETTLEMENT

By International News Service.

Washington, Aug. 8.—Ambassador Designate Arredondo was closeted with Assistant Secretary of State Polk for ten minutes just prior to the cabinet meeting today. On leaving he said he had told the acting secretary that the Carranza note of August 4 was intended to be a complete reply to the American note.

The Mexican government naturally wanted, he said, the question of troops withdrawal and border protection settled first, but in his opinion there was not the slightest impediment in the way at present of the joint commission, when named, entering into every matter that would aid in complete restoration of Mexico to her rightful place among the nations.

Acting Secretary Polk said that in his opinion the American members of the joint commission would be announced in the near future.

Makes Offer of $25,000 for Cure of Baby Paralysis

RICHARD TELLER CRANE, JR., the millionaire pipe manufacturer of Chicago, wired to Mayor Mitchel an offer of $25,000 to the scientist who evolves a "cure or some means of prevention" for infantile paralysis.

Mr. Crane is at the Waumbek Hotel, Jefferson, N. H. His message to the Mayor reads in part:

The great distress and suffering caused by infantile paralysis leads me to believe that some one of the numerous able physicians who are studying this disease may be able to find some cure, or at least some means of prevention.

I will be glad to contribute twenty-five thousand dollars to the individual who may offer the best cure or solution of this great affliction within the next year.

Richard Teller Crane, Jr., is president of the Crane Company, a large manufacturing concern of Chicago, noted for its generosity to employes.

Mr. Crane was born in Chicago in 1873, graduated from Yale in 1895, and immediately went into his father's factory, working his way up from the bottom. When R. T. Crane, Sr., died, in January, 1912, leaving a $10,000,000 estate, R. T. Crane, Jr., was the principal beneficiary.

DEMANDS LIQUOR INQUIRY

The fact that W. S. Tasker, a private investigator, had been employed by the Licensing Board at a salary of $6 per day, and a demand by Chester H. Lawrence, Progressive and Prohibition candidate for Governor, that Governor McCall investigate the Boston liquor situation, were today's developments in the Boston Licensing Board scandal.

Since the public statement by Charles R. Gow, a former member of the board, denials and counter charges have been made daily.

The situation became more intense today when Candidate Lawrence addressed his statement to the Governor. In the statement he said:

"It is up to Governor McCall to immediately arrange a public investigation of this most recent liquor scandal in Boston. If I were the governor of this state, and guilless of the charge that my election was procured by a coalition of the Republican machine and the liquor interests, I would demand an investigation of these charges at once.

"William Shaw, Prohibition candidate for Governor last Fall, projected this entire scandal three days before election. Shaw said he had evidence of the fact that the license interests and the Republican machine were in collusion.

DEMANDS INQUIRY.

"Charles R. Gow and Mr. Lawton of the Anti-Saloon League have made public charges that the liquor interests, with the assistance of the present Republican administration, have gained absolute control of the liquor situation in Boston.

"Such a state of affairs is not good for a city. The situation cannot be cleared up without such an investigation as I suggest. It is squarely up to Governor McCall.

"The liquor situation in Boston is bound to be a campaign issue in the coming State election. It is not my purpose to throw mud. I am going to conduct a clean campaign. However, I felt it my duty to let the people know where I stood on this all-important issue."

A voucher at City Hall, approved by Mayor Curley, for $703.40 and made payable to Detective Tasker, revealed the fact that he had been acting as an investigator for the Licensing Board. This voucher furnished the information that Tasker has been employed at $6 per day for several months.

When questioned concerning the expenditures to Tasker, Louis Epple, clerk of the board, said:

COMMENTS ON TASKER.

"I am very sorry that this information should have been made public at this time. Mr. Tasker was a private investigator for this board, and now that the license holders know who he is I fear he can be of no further service to the board.

"Of course, I don't know what the board will do about it, but it is my belief that we will have to dispense with his services. He has been with us for some time, and has done good service."

When asked if any licenses have been revoked on the strength of information furnished the board by Mr. Tasker, Mr. Epple replied: "You can readily appreciate that I cannot answer such a question."

Parents of Baby Abandoned in St. Leonard's Sought

The superintendent of the Chardon Street Home has been requested to make efforts to locate the parents of a three-weeks-old baby boy who was left under a bench in St. Leonard's Church, Prince street, some time yesterday.

The baby was discovered by the janitor of the church and was clothed with baby garments bearing the laundry mark of a local Friendly Society, through which instit tion efforts are being made to locate relatives of the child. It is believed that whoever abandoned the baby was in dire straits.

It is the desire of the Friendly Society from which the baby clothes came to make the lot of whoever owns the baby as comfortable as possible.

BURBANK SWORN AS STATE SUPERVISOR

Charles H. Burbank today qualified as State Supervisor of Administration. He took the oaths of office in the presence of Acting Governor Coolidge. When Mr. Burbank qualified Francis X. Tyrrell, Thomas W. White and Charles F. W. Archer, members of the commission, automatically passed out of office.

WILSON WANTS CONGRESS HOME BY SEPT. 10

By JOHN EDWIN NEVIN.
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Washington, Aug. 8.—All administration forces were today working tooth and nail to force adjournment of Congress not later than September 10.

For the first time since the national conventions, President Wilson today has had it made plain that he has a fight on his hands for re-election. And while he still insists that his congressional legislative program be completed before Congress adjourns, he is finally willing to use all pressure to get his pet bills through.

The President was told in rather plain language yesterday by Vance McCormick, chairman, and Homer S. Cummings, vice-chairman of the Democratic national committee, that the Western trip of Republican candidate Hughes would "put starch" in the Republican campaign.

The attack on the administration's policy is to be most bitter and continuous, and as a result of the enlistment of Nelson Olhaughnessy it was explained that many documents now in the archives of the State Department will be dragged into the light.

In order that the Mexican situation shall be settled as far as possible before the latter days of the campaign

Gasoline Drops a Cent! Don't Sniff! But Thank John D.

"Whoop-la! Gasoline is down a cent a gallon! Let the automobile owners rejoice, let the car owners be glad!

John D. has melted with compassion (or the heat) and the edict has gone forth that the wholesale price of the "juice" is 24 cents per.

Do not sniff disdainfully and say "piffle" because the price is only down a cent a gallon.

Be reminded that there are more than 2,000,000 autos in the United States, and that they consume on the average, say, five gallons of gas per day. It figures out at least 10,000,000 gallons from which the price has clipped a cent a gallon.

Figure it out yourself. Does not John D. lose $100,000 a day because of the drop? Or $36,500,000 a year?

Therefore, all ye who drive motor cars and cuss the price of gasoline, be thankful for even this $36,500,000 rebate. John D. could, you know, put the stuff up to 36 cents per.

B. & M. NOTES MAY NOT BE RENEWED

The directors of the Boston & Maine Railroad have voted not to accept the offer of President Benjamin A. Kimball of the Concord & Montreal to scale from seven to six per cent. the guaranteed dividend on the Concord & Montreal stock and to scale from ten to eight per cent. the guaranteed dividend on the Connecticut River stock, all in lieu of accepting new Boston & Maine first preferred stock under any reorganization plan.

This decision was reached at a special meeting of the Boston & Maine directors and no further meeting will be held until August 22, the date of the regular meeting.

It is predicted today that there will be no further extension of outstanding Boston & Maine notes. Already eight renewals have been requested.

The latest report of the road's condition shows a net income, after charges, of $4,065,691 for the year ending June 30, 1916, as against a deficit of $234,462 for the previous year, or a net increase of $4,400,153. The gain in gross was made almost entirely during the past ten months, and for the first time in the road's history fixed charges were more than earned during each month of the fiscal year.

CITY SWELTERS IN RECORD HEAT

climb continued until all the morning records had been shattered. The high mark of the season, 93, which was reached July 31, was in danger long before noon.

Conditions were so bad in Waltham that the great factory of the Waltham Watch Company closed at noon. More than 5,000 employes benefited by this action of the company.

Thousands visited the beaches, hoping in this way to escape the terrific heat of the city which made conditions almost unbearable. The ferryboats and electric cars running to the beaches were crowded.

The Weather Bureau announced that it was possible thunder showers might bring relief later in the day.

Boston shares the honor with one or two other cities of being the hottest town in the country today. Other hot places are Key West, which splits fifty-fifty with Boston, Albany, New York and Portland, Me.

Eastport, with only fifty-two degrees at 4 a. m., was the coolest place in New England.

In New York five deaths and eighteen prostrations have been caused by the heat wave. Today was a little more comfortable than yesterday, but the mercury hovered around the 90's.

The official mark for points in Southwestern Texas, where Bay State boys are guarding the border, at 8 o'clock was 66 degrees, many degrees cooler than in Boston.

In addition to the extreme heat the humidity did its part in making conditions oppressive, standing at 82, which is 12 per cent. above normal.

Gosh! But It's Good Sanfords Ginger

Is good for about everything that can ail you in the way of cramps, pains, colds and chills. Take it early and often.

A delicious combination of ginger, aromatics and fresh brandy for the relief of cramps, pains, colds, chills, weakness, nervousness and insomnia. Look for the Full Trade Mark on the wrapper, lest you get a cheap, worthless imitation. Forty years the standard of tonic flavor and strength. Sold by all druggists and grocers.

Summer-Spoiled Skin Removed by Absorption

An outer horney cuticle ultimately develops an unfavorable surface of tan, pimples or other blemishes from lack of the sensible thing to do is to remove such cuticle, where a natural better for this than ordinary mercolized wax, which gently absorbs the unsightliness, a little at a time. The thin layer of surface skin is used absorbed, gradually, as there is no inconvenience, no discomfort, no redness. Apply mercolized wax nightly over the entire face or portions and bathe in the usual way in warm water. If you will get the ounce of mercolized wax at any druggist's and use it as directed, you may expect marked improvement in your skin in a week or ten days. It absorbs to keep your complexion fresh and beautiful. Adv.—Advertisement.

Don't let those summer wrinkles worry you. Instead, by using pure, mild, harmless thiolin, be battling the face in a manner that will surprise you. Thiolin used in its pet which brand. Used daily it helps to prevent those wonderfully effective.—Advertisement.

Disfiguring Humor Spread over Face

Used Resinol. Skin Now Beautiful.

Seattle, Wash., Sept. 25, 1915.—"A small red rash appeared with itching white scales appeared beside my mouth. Then it spread and covered both sides of my face and the scales cracked open, causing a terrible itching and smarting. It looked horribly and very embarrassing. I tried many salves but could get no relief. At last I heard of Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap, and applied them as directed. The smarting and itching sensation was relieved at once and in three weeks I was entirely cured. My face shows no sign of breaking out now, in fact, my skin is considered beautiful."—Signed, Miss Elsie D. Collins, 1926 8th st.

At druggists sell Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap. For samples free, write to Dept. 2-S, Resinol, Baltimore.—Advertisement.

Senate Tax on Commodities in War Munitions

By International News Service.

Washington, Aug. 8—The Senate Finance Committee has decided to impose a flat tax, uniform in character, on all commodities used in the manufacture of war munitions. The rate has not been determined.

Secretary McAdoo was in consultation with Democratic members. The various rates provided in the House bill were eliminated.

The Senate's plan will be a tax on the profits made by the manufacturer, ster on the afternoon of July 18.

RENDER HARRIS CASE REPORT SATURDAY

The Grand Jury, which investigated the so-called "Triangle Tragedy," will report to the Suffolk Superior Court next Saturday. It took but a short time for the Grand Jury to hear the evidence in the case of Dr. Eldridge De Loreia Atwood, charged with killing Dr. Wilfred E. Harris in the office of the latter at the Hotel Westminster on the afternoon of July 13.

STRIKEBREAKERS AT BARRE QUIT

Barre, Aug. 8.—With the assertion that a special detective from Worcester shot and killed Anthony Pazzucki, one of their number, in yesterday's strike riot, the Polish strikers at the Barre Wool-Combing Company's plant today said the disturbance yesterday had successfully intimidated the Portuguese strike-breakers.

Only fifty operatives of the two hundred at work yesterday entered the mill gates when the whistle blew today. The men who returned to work are all old hands who did not favor the strike in the beginning.

When Chief of Special Police A. M. Stone, who, with a squad of Boston detectives figured in yesterday's riot, went to the homes of the Portuguese strike-breakers to escort them to work today, they refused to leave their quarters, saying that yesterday's demonstration was enough for them.

Quiet on the part of the strikers prevailed today, and no further disturbance was looked for.

The armed guards have the situation well in hand according to Captain Stone.

Today an investigation was begun to fix responsibility for the rioting yesterday which resulted in the death of Pazzucki and the injury of four other persons.

During the shutdown Captain A. M. Stone of the Sherman Detective Agency of Boston, and eleven of his operators have been employed at the mills, as guards, and they were continued on duty after the mills opened.

A majority of the old employes live in a section of the town known as Trafalgar square, in rows of houses owned by the company. Directly across from them is King Edward row, another block of houses owned by the company, in which were quartered the strike-breakers.

While the strike-breakers were sitting out in front of their homes a striker came over from King Edward row and said to one of the strike-breakers: "We'll bill you if you go back to work." This remark started a general fight between the two colonies with the fortunes of war about even until Captain Stone and his men arrived. Many women were assisting the strikers.

This was the third strike at the South Barre mills since January and the second fatal riot at the plants. During a strike in 1912 strike-breakers were employed and started a riot necessitating a call for police from several places near.

Does Your Condition Discourage You?

After suffering from a severe cold which care and treatment have only allayed as you think they should, do you feel your system needs a change of treatment?

In many such cases—where symptoms of asthma, bronchial troubles or pulmonary affections appear—Eckman's Alterative has brought good results.

This time-bearing preparation has been widely used for more than twenty years, with remarkable results in numerous instances.

As with any prescription, too much must not be expected of the medicine itself. At best it can only assist Nature. And here is a remedy that is safe to try, since it contains no habit-forming drugs.

GIRL OF 13, VISITING BOSTON, DISAPPEARS

Dorchester and New York police are searching for Hester Levy, thirteen-year-old daughter of Mrs. Rebecca Levy of Cleveland street, Brooklyn, N. Y., who disappeared from the home of her uncle, Jacob Wasserman of Hopkins street, Dorchester, July 27, after she had been seen since.

The girl left the house to visit her uncle at his place of business on Pleasant street and dropped out of sight. Her dress suit case and most of her clothing are also missing.

WAITS COMMISSION DIGGING IN TRENCH

El Paso, Texas, Aug. 8.—Captain Marshall Henderson, Sixteenth Pennsylvania Infantry, had been inspector of small arms practice, an office abolished by the mobilization. In order to obtain a commission in the line he had to enlist as a private. For two hours before his commission as captain was handed him he had a workout in digging trenches.

MAN IS HELD IN WINCHESTER SHOOTING

Constantine Bruno, thirty-six, of Quigley court, Winchester, was shot and perhaps fatally injured when he was walking from the railroad station to his home today.

Salvatore Osiro, thirty-one, of Irving street, Winchester, arrested on suspicion by the police, was later arraigned in the Woburn court, charged with assault with intent to kill. He pleaded not guilty and was held in $1,000 for a continued hearing.

Bruno is at the Winchester Hospital in a critical condition with a bullet wound in his left lung.

Bruno told the police he was walking toward his home when he was set upon by two men.

The police are searching for the men they believe to have been the companion of Osiro. When they called at the house where he has been rooming he escaped by leaping from a window.

$267,000,000 NOW IN THE ARMY BILL

Washington, Aug. 8.—Without roll-call the Senate today adopted the conference report on the army appropriation bill. As finally adopted, the bill carries $267,000,000.

WILSON DEFENDED AFTER HUGHES' ATTACK

Washington, Aug. 8.—Declaring that the criticism directed by Charles E. Hughes against the administration's Mexican policy grew out of "ignorance of the true policy of President Wilson," Representative R. P. Harrison of Mississippi today delivered a spirited defence of the President's course in Mexico on the floor of the House.

Representative Harrison declared that the stand taken by Candidate Hughes on the Mexican question was prompted by Senator Fall of New Mexico and Henry Lane Wilson, "the discredited ex-Ambassador to Mexico."

THINKS HUGHES MISLED.

"When I recall the almost superhuman degree of patience which President Wilson has shown in our whole Mexican policy," said Representative Harrison, "when I contemplate how at times his firmness almost drove us to actual war and when I recall the lack of criticism of his policy by the Republican party during all this time, I naturally conclude that the Republican leaders in their acceptance speech either is not in accord with his party on this question or that he has allowed himself to be misled by certain advisers who are out of sympathy with the American people and whose views touching Mexican affairs are forced by their own selfish desires to obtain from the American people an approval of their outrageous and shameful past conduct."

Representative Harrison then pointed out that Senator Fall and former Ambassador Wilson had been called upon by Hughes to submit their views on the Mexican situation.

HUGHES OUT OF TOUCH.

"If there is any place in the public service which divorces a man from the common touch of mankind it is the Supreme Court bench. Mr. Hughes cannot therefore be justly criticized for his failure to be informed about current events, including this government's policy toward Mexico during the past four years," he continued.

Representative Harrison characterized the Hughes acceptance speech as a "caustic, vitriolic and unfair criticism of the President's Mexican policy."

He took up three specific points attacked by Hughes—the refusal to recognize Huerta, the handling of the embargo on arms and munitions, and the failure to intervene. He said that the Hughes criticism on these points forces the conclusion that the Republican candidate would have recognized Huerta and would have forced intervention.

Hughes Greets Public in Chicago

By International News Service.

Chicago, Aug. 8.—Charles Evans Hughes, Republican presidential nominee, arrived in Chicago today for a fourteen-hour stay, to include a public reception and a speech tonight in the Coliseum.

The Hughes party arrived over the Michigan Central from Detroit on a special train. Elaborate preparations had been made for receiving him and the Illinois Central station and the streets about it were filled with crowds anxious to see the Republican standard bearer.

As he emerged from the station, Mr. Hughes was greeted with a cheer from the assembled crowd and his way to the Blackstone Hotel was lined with cheering throngs.

Mr. Hughes, after breakfast with Mrs. Hughes, went to the Conway Building, where Republican headquarters had been established. The public reception was held in the rotunda of the hotel. Later the candidate was taken about the city by the reception committee. After the Coliseum meeting tonight, Mr. Hughes will leave for St. Paul.

"I Loved Baby, So I Borrowed It," Says Girl Accused as a Kidnaper

How her yearning for beautiful little Violet Lamphere caused her to "borrow" the child from the home of the child's parents at No. 27 Williams street, Chelsea, and keep her for several days, was the story told by Miss Emma Page, twenty-three, of Hanover street, Lynn, in the Chelsea court today.

Arraigned on the charge of kidnaping the baby, Miss Page waived examination and was held in $1,000 for the Grand Jury. When asked by Judge Stearns why she took the child from its mother's home Miss Page said:

"I was a friend of the family and on numerous occasions the baby's mother had allowed me to take the baby for car rides and airings in the park. I love baby Violet, and it seemed that I wanted her near me all the time.

"When I called at the baby's home last Wednesday, her grandmother was taking care of the baby, and she let me take Violet for a car ride. I enjoyed having Violet with me, and forgot all about the time. Then I thought that the parents wouldn't care, so long as they knew baby was safe with me. So I just kept her over night, and we had a lovely time together. Another day went by, and still another. I couldn't bear to part with baby Violet, so I kept her, and was intending to take her back when the policeman came after us in Lynn."

In the court room baby Violet ran about making friends with everybody. Her mother, Mrs. Bertha M. Lamphere, and her grandmother, Mrs. Jennie A. Collins, were present, as was also Miss Page's father, Joseph N. Page, assistant engineer in the Haverhill fire department.

The parents of the child have not indicated any intention of withdrawing the charge against Miss Page. In court the young woman appeared composed, and spoke with assurance. She was not represented by counsel.

Violet Lamphere, Chelsea baby "borrowed" for several days, and Miss Emma Page of Lynn, held on charge of kidnaping.

SUGGEST U. S. ACTION FOR POLISH RELIEF

London, Aug. 8.—The Foreign Office today will send a memorandum to Walter Hines Page, the American ambassador, which will leave the way open for a resumption of the negotiations for feeding the civilian populations of the Germans-occupied areas.

The memorandum will suggest that the United States government can reopen the question if it considers such a step advisable or useful.

Why Suffer From Migraine or Sick Headache?

Dr. J. J. Caldwell says that this exceedingly distressing disease does not shorten life, but does not appear to be curable. Sufferers from this affliction are condemned to undergo the periodical attacks every few weeks until they are forty years of age, after which these attacks are less frequent, and finally disappear entirely. Palliative measures during the attack are all that is possible to suggest, while care in the diet is the best preventive measure. An attack may often be prevented by taking two Anti-kamnola tablets when the first symptoms appear, and one anti-kamnola tablet every two hours during the attack shortens it, eases the pain and brings rest and quiet. Anti-kamnola tablets may be obtained at all druggists. Ask for A-K Tablets. They quickly relieve all Pain.

How You Can Make Hairs Quickly Disappear

(Helps to Beauty)

Even a stubborn growth of hair will quickly vanish from the face, neck or arms after a single treatment with delatone. To remove the hairs, make a stiff paste with a little powdered delatone and water, apply to hairy surface and after about 3 minutes rub off, wash the skin and it will be left free from hair or blemish. To avoid disappointment, be quite certain you get real delatone.—Advertisement.

SOUTH BOSTON AID FOR CARR FAMILY

Business men of South Boston have started a movement to relieve distress in the family of Patrolman Patrick Carr, who was killed in the course of his duty on August 1. The officer was hurled to his death from the Castle Island bridge, while on his way to Castle Island, where a boy had been injured.

He left a widow and seven small children.

BRYAN FOR PLAN TO MAKE SILVER GOLD

Washington, Aug. 8.— William J. Bryan, when Secretary of State, favored an effort to transmute silver into gold, it developed today. Mrs. May Bernard Wilcox of Spokane sent specimens which she said were transmuted gold. Bryan thought well enough of them to pass them along to the Treasury Department with the understanding that the matter be investigated.

GENERAL STRIKE OF WIREMEN IS FEARED

Chicago, Aug. 8.—Possibility of a general telegraphers' strike August 15 is seen in an announcement recalled here from W. B. Roberts, president of the Kansas City local of the Telegraphers' Union, that many Western cities have reported agreement to demand an eight-hour day and higher pay.

COLE ENGAGES QUARTERS FOR CAMPAIGN

General Charles H. Cole today engaged headquarters at No. 50 Congress street for his campaign for the Democratic nomination for Governor. He will make formal announcement of his candidacy this week. The announcement is expected to come tomorrow or by Thursday evening at the latest.

Former Governor Walsh will come in from Clinton tomorrow and take up a suite of rooms at the Hotel Lenox. He will be given a reception by numerous "big lights" of the Democratic party tomorrow forenoon at 11 o'clock.

WALSH POSSIBLY NEUTRAL.

Whether the former Governor will actively support General Cole in the primary fight against Attorney Frederick W. Mansfield, who also aspires to the party's gubernatorial nomination, had not been determined by Mr. Walsh this afternoon.

It was said not to be unlikely that the Governor would issue a statement proclaiming "neutrality" in the party fight between Cole and Mansfield.

"I, of course, have my personal preference, but I doubt if I will take an active part in the primary contest," said the former Governor over the phone from his home in Clinton.

Mr. Mansfield recently issued a statement warning Mr. Walsh against an effort to dictate the party nomination.

It is expected the former Governor will declare he will not be a candidate for the United States senatorship. He will announce that in the primary contests he will remain inactive, but that he will volunteer his services to the National and State tickets in the election campaign.

O'CONNELL MAY RUN.

Mr. Walsh's attitude was believed to have left the senatorial field in the Democratic party open to former Mayor John Fitzgerald, but former Congressman Joseph F. O'Connell today announced that "it looks now to be pretty certain that I will run for the Democratic nomination for the United States senatorship." "I will make a statement in a couple of days," he said.

Dr. Fitzgerald is in Hull. He has as yet failed to declare whether he will be a candidate. He is among those slated to confer with Mr. Walsh tomorrow at the Lenox.

Judge Thomas P. Riley of Malden, formerly chairman of the Democratic State Committee, and a former member of the Board of Gas and Electric Light Commissioners, will be supported as the Democratic candidate for Lieutenant-Governor, it was said by the party leaders today.

Leon R. Eyges, former assistant attorney-general, will run as the party candidate for Secretary of State, and Joseph Joyce Donahue, who was buried under the avalanche last year, wants to "be born in" again as the nominee for Lieutenant-Governor.

Pirates Now in Town
Braves to Play Hard

By JOHN W. MORAN, JR.

Unless Walter Tragesser makes a quick return to form the Braves are apt to be rather hard put for catchers when they face Brooklyn in a double-header next Saturday. If he isn't able to get in the task of catching both contests will fall on Arthur Rico, the schoolboy backstop whom Stallings is grooming. Blackburn must return to Providence immediately after the series with Pittsburgh is completed Friday night.

TRAGESSER IMPROVING.

That fact became known yesterday afternoon and was not a source of pleasure to Manager Stallings or those connected with the team. Tragesser is at Braves Field each day, but is in no condition to don a uniform, much less do any real work. He still walks with a limp and gives one the impression that his leg is still bandaged. Just what the Miracle Man will do is a hard problem to solve. Of course, in a pinch Fred Mitchell could don the catching harness, but only as a last resort would that be done.

Blackburn will be able to catch the five games which remain to be played with the Pirates. In fact, he'll be out on the firing line this afternoon, handling the shoots of either Dick Rudolph or George Tyler, who seem destined to start the fun. Dick has always been more or less of a stumbling block to the Pirates, and it seems as though he would be the one to start the series. Rudy is now at top form and Stallings may use him to open up each series the club plays. In event of his failing to draw down the assignment George Tyler will probably get it.

CALLAHAN A FAVORITE.

Our old college chum, James, otherwise known as Jeome, Callahan, or Nixie, will in all probability send Kauliehner after the game. He has not worked since Thursday, when he opened the series against Brooklyn. Bob Harmon should follow him on the hill with Mamaux and Cooper working in third order. In addition Callahan has Miller, Carpenter and Jacobs on his hurling staff if they can be spared in town on the 11 o'clock last night and went direct to their hotel, tired after the hot ride.

SCHULTE WILL BE P.

Callahan found time to state that while the Pirates are not going at quite so fast a clip as he would like to have them, they are nevertheless coming along well enough to satisfy for this year. He felt that the recent acquisition of Frank Schulte would help his club considerably. With such outfielders as Barnhart, Bates, Hinchman and "Wise Cracking" Costello he feels pretty strong in the outer gardens.

The club hasn't hit quite as well as he would like to have them, but Callahan feels that pitching could be expected. He isn't trying to land the pennant this year, but thinks he has a fast building a team which will land the old position in another year or two. Prospects look as well pleased as they want to be and are satisfied to give Callahan a fair trial.

STILL MORE INJURIES.

The injury which deprives the Braves of Eddie Pitzmatrick's services isn't any source of pleasure to G. T. Stallings. The Braves boss in addition to being hard put for catchers is more or less up against it for infielders should anything happen to the quartette now laboring. With Evers suffering from neuritis and Fitz laid up with strained tendons, it is plain to be seen that the permanent location of the club isn't as strong as it might be today.

Should anything happen to any of the men now playing at second, third or short it would be necessary to bring Sherwood Magee into the outfield and make a general readjustment of the whole works. Should either the third or short of Smith or Maranville were injured, Magee could play either short or second much better than he could the hot corner. Fitzpatrick will be out for a few days to-day, but how long it will be before Evers gets back into the game is a hard question to decide. Yesterday he didn't visit the park, instead remaining at his room with Mrs. Evers, who has arrived in town to care for him.

BLACKBURN MUST RETURN.

Dave Shean, the Providence manager, was at yesterday's game, and it is supposed that he brought the information regarding Blackburn with him. While no official announcement was made that Blackburn would have to return to Providence at the close of the home stay, it is nevertheless known to be a fact. Shean thinks his club can land the International League pennant this year and he wants his full strength in the game all the while.

With the Pirates will come a new set of umpires, in all probability Bill Klem and Bob Emslie. If they go anywhere near as well as Byron and Quigley have gone in the seven games just played they'll meet with the approval of all Boston fans, players and writers. They won't get passed and Joe Vila won't have to go to the defence of the old league and its chief mogul.

BRAVES NOTES

JEMUS CALLAHAN and his Pirates are in town. They open their series at 3.15 this afternoon. Dick Rudolph will probably face them.

* * *

FROM the peak it appeared as though Prince Hal had a just complaint. Both Byron and Quigley missed the play and Chase gained nothing but banishment by kicking.

* * *

AGAIN it looked bad when Maranville opened the game for the Braves, with a triple. When a man triples with none out and cannot help brought home it scarcely pleases.

* * *

YESTERDAY'S heat was depressing. Athletes and fans alike suffered. Bill Byron, with his sleeves quit, was the only cool-appearing person.

* * *

JACK RYDER and Christy Mathewson spent Sunday quietly at the Belmont Spring Country Club. But one thing they didn't enjoy to quite the extent they might perfectly is the play and Blackburn's return was equally as welcome.

* * *

WINNING ball games with two hits is all right in its way. However, more bingles must come if games are to be won consistently.

* * *

ADDING Eddie Pitzmatrick's name to the injured list will not cause Callahan to help any. Still, Dick Egan will fill in until Johnny Evers is ready to play.

* * *

DURING the rest between the games yesterday Bill Blackburn found time to change his uniform. The change was necessary, for "Blackie" perspired freely during the opener and his "Duds" became quite black.

* * *

MARANVILLE opened the second game with another stout blow. This time it was Byron four cacks, thus preventing his being stranded.

* * *

FRANK ALLEN was sent out to repear his game of last week. The pervader is a willing worker and is at his best right now.

* * *

DESPITE the heat Lord Byron had all his "pep." "Come on boys, a little life, a little 'pep'," was his continuous cry.

* * *

SAM CARRICK arrived in the press stand with his usual piece of light reading matter. His latest book has to do with "The Ancient World." While, of course, not as interesting as "The Effect of Tropical Light on White Men," it helped to pass the time away.

* * *

MITCHELL had his on each of his first two trips to the plate. The second time he was apparently struck out, but Quigley missed one which got the inside corner.

CARLSON DEALT A KAYO BY DAN CUPID

Harry Carlson, the crack young Brockton lightweight, has forsaken the order of single men and, if his handsome young wife has her way about it, he will forsake the squared circle. Mrs. Carlson was Miss Annie Hooker of North Abington. The marriage took place at Saxton River, Vt., with the Rev. George A. Chapin officiating.

McGraw Hints He May Retire in Fall of '18

New York, Aug 8.—John J. McGraw, manager of the Giants since 1902, is seriously contemplating retiring from baseball with the close of the 1918 season, when his present contract expires.

As he left the Polo Grounds today McGraw said that while he had not made up his mind definitely, he was giving the subject a great deal of thought. His future course was uncertain and will probably be determined by what happens between now and October, 1918.

The fact that McGraw is thinking of leaving the team made color to the rumors published when the recent deal was put through whereby the Giants and Chicago Cubs would go to Cincinnati in exchange for Herzog, that the New York club desired to have a string on Mattie so he could be recalled at the end of two years. No confirmation was obtainable at that time that the Giants were looking forward to a time when McGraw would lay down the reins, but it seems now that such was the case. McGraw first played baseball in 1885, when he joined the Baltimore Orioles. He played on this team until 1899, when he went to St. Louis as manager, captain and third baseman. Later he returned to Baltimore, where he endeavored to organize a team for the American League. The project was not a success, however, and in 1902 McGraw came to the Giants. In his fifteen years as manager he has won five pennants in the National League and one world's championship title.

By JOHN J. McGRAW,
Manager of New York Giants.

I'm getting old and I'm beginning to feel the strain of the game. I have been in baseball a long time and I don't feel that I want to spend all my life in it. My contract expires in 1918 and I have thought I wouldn't sign another.

Nothing is settled in my mind and I wouldn't want to say definitely I plan to leave the Giants in 1918, although I may.

K. of C. Baseball Played at Fenway Park

The Knights of Columbus inter-city championship games between the San Salvador Council of New York and the Pere Marquette Council of Boston will be held this season in Boston. Through the kindness of President Lannin of the Red Sox the opening game of the series will be played at Fenway Park on Saturday, September 1.

The second game will be played on Labor Day morning at the M street playgrounds, and the third and final game will be held at the old National League Grounds on Labor Day afternoon.

The New York team has a clean record of ten victories this season and is made up of minor league and college stars, among them being Jack Burchill, first baseman, former High School star; Connelly at third, who was tried out with the Giants last season; Jack Burchill, shortstop, formerly with the Yankees and Manhattan College; Joe Gallivan, left field; former Exeter star; Tom Dolan, centre field, from Fordham College, and Jos. Dolan, right field, one time a member of the Dartmouth College team.

Among the pitchers who will be seen with the visitors are Yates of St. John's College, Murray, star pitcher of the New York Fire Department, and McGuade, the star of Fordham University staff.

HOT LINERS

By FRANK G. MENKE.

The Reds do love goose eggs. They were given eighteen of them by the Cubs.

* * *

The Braves have cut down the Dodgers' lead to three and one half games. The fur will fly when these two teams clash the end of the week.

* * *

The Giants made thirteen hits in four games with the Cubs and secured three victories. Which shows hitting doesn't always count.

* * *

We have met the enemy and they are ours. The White Sox chirruped after the opening clash with their rival hosiery experts.

Sisler's single paved the way for another victory for the Browns over the Nationals.

It is the Tigers' turn to have the soft picking on the Athletics. Nineteen straight defeats for Connie Mack.

Crop of Broilers to be Brought to Brooklyn

Brooklyn, Aug. 8.—The action of the Brooklyn club owners in purchasing the release of Infielder Kelleher from the Denver (Western League) club last week, will be followed shortly by the recall of at least eight players now farmed out to various minor league teams.

The new additions to the Brooklyn club are

Hickman, an outfielder, with the Asheville club, who has a batting average of .315 and a fielding average of .968; Nixon, an outfielder with Beaumont, who has a batting average of .319 and a fielding average of .972; Smyth, an infielder with Montreal, who has a batting average of .349 and a fielding average of .937; Wheat, a catcher with Harrisburg, who has a batting average of .245 and a fielding average of .986; Zimmerman, an outfielder with Hartford, who has a batting average of .283 and a fielding mark of .959, and Cafore, Colwell and Goodbred, all pitchers, with Montreal.

U. S. SOCCER TEAM REACHES SWEDEN

Christiania, Aug. 8.—After an uneventful voyage of twelve days, the fourteen American soccer players, who will represent the United States Football Association in the five international matches this month, arrived with their manager and trainer on board the steamship Frederick VIII. On landing the tourists were met by C. L. Korsrud, secretary of the Stockholm Gymnastic Sporting Association, who conducted negotiations for the trip.

NEW YORK TYPOS SCORE.

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 8.—By the Union Printers' baseball tournament New York defeated Washington, 3-2, and Cleveland laid out Philadelphia, 11-3. St. Paul and Cincinnati and Detroit and St. Louis play today.

'Chet' Thomas and Austin Set Down in Their Battle

CHICAGO, Aug. 8.—Chester Thomas, catcher of the Boston Red Sox, and Jimmy Austin, third baseman of the St. Louis Browns, were suspended indefinitely by President Johnson of the American League for their fist fight in the game in St. Louis.

Both President Lannin and Manager Carrigan claim Johnson made a mistake in penalizing Thomas, alleging that Austin was entirely to blame for the trouble.

Champs Full of Fight
Hope to Land First

Chicago, Aug. 8.—The loss of the game in which Leonard proved so easy has not discouraged the World's Champions in the least. They are close enough to the leaders to worry them, which is a better place to be in than leading the way at this time. However, the boys will go after the remaining games there will all that is best in them. Manager Carrigan will send Babe Ruth to the mound, while Claude Williams, the clever southpaw, will work for the White Sox. The town is baseball mad.

PLENTY OF MONEY.

One thing is certain and that is the financial man of the Red Sox will have a most enjoyable trip here. The Chicago fans, wild about the chances of their favorites, are flocking to the South Side Park in goodly number. More than 10,000 were present yesterday, which was one of the hottest days of the mighty hot Summer.

With a bit cooler weather and no rain at least 60,000 will pay to see the two leaders in their four-game engagement, and that is bound to remove some of the disappointment regardless of what happens.

The Red Sox point to the fact that the White Sox always beat them in the first game; that they won both contests of a double-header when the two teams met in Boston and then lost four in a row to the men of Carrigan.

CANNOT GET ON TOP.

The disappointing feature to the Boston players is that they will be unable to get into the lead before Thursday, and in order to leave here in first place they will have to take all of the remaining games. Quite a task, but the Eastern athletes claim they are equal to it.

The suspension of Catcher Thomas comes as a severe blow to the World's Champions, and they are grumbling over the action of President Johnson. The Boston players declare that Thomas did nothing more than defend himself and President Lannin is quoted as saying that if Thomas had done less he would have been fined for his part in the scrimmage.

The Boston teams are certainly getting the worst of being fighting, with Evers of the Braves and Agnew and Thomas of the Red Sox in the limelight because of their punching ability.

ALIBIS NEVER PLEASE.

Alibis are seldom satisfactory and never pleasing and none will be cited in favor of the World's Champions as the result of their trouncing by the Chicagoans. They were beaten and badly so, because Leonard lacked a great deal of being a good pitcher. That was their worst fault.

With a better brand of twirling they would have been in the hunt all the way and, since the hurling is the strong asset of the Red Sox, they expect to reverse the decisions in some of the following games.

Leonard had but little else than his glove. He retired at the end of the fifth inning after nine hits and five runs. Jones took up the burden and did good work in all but the seventh, when the White Sox put over a superfluous pair of counters.

The White Sox scored early and often and really had the game sewed up long before Leonard withdrew. Now, Schalk and Russell led in the slaughter, each landing a athlete pounding out three hits.

The Red Sox were blanked until the ninth, when Hooper's triple, followed by Pinch Hitter Cady's double, gave a tally.

STELLWAGEN-JAYNE WIN.

Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 8.—Seiford Stellwagen, of the Minneapolis Tennis Association, defeated Ward Burton and John Adams, also of Minneapolis, in the final match round of the Northwestern tennis tournament, 2—6, 6—4, 6—2.

O'Brien Makes His Bow
Hammer 2 to 1 Favorite

By RINGSIDE.

If the weather behaves, the night not proving too sizzling warm, the game of fisticuffs to be played by Ever Hammer, the noted Chicago lightweight, and Shamus O'Brien, the loudly tried, well press-agented and evidently efficient Yonkers, N. Y., battler, at the Arena, promises to be practically equally as thrilling a combat as last week's herrah number between the already mentioned Hammer and Johnny O'Leary, the Seattle, Wash., Flash and owner of Canada's 136-pound boxing title.

Hammer must pull the biggest form reversal on record in order to prove a fly. Though nosed out by O'Leary, the Chicago Cyclone delivered big as they spake of hits in the showshop world. Hammer was the aggressor all the way in his encounter with O'Leary. Hence, built the fight, which was just about the most enjoyable ever staged in Boston—and that is saying a whole lot.

General interest centres in O'Brien's appearance. Promoter Mish Murray got the break he has been looking for to, these many moons, when he hooked two sound and willing rink broilers a week ago and trotted them forth. Colonel Murray almost went blind looking for that break. It came, thanks to Hammer, nicely aided by O'Leary, another one of the up-and-up contingent.

STARS DON'T ALWAYS SHINE.

The pugdom stars, out-and-out topliners, are frequently guilty of doing a lot of stalling when showing in Boston. To begin with, they don't like this thing of boxing to a decision. They only sign to show here because they get their price. They dread being returned a loser.

As a lot of the Arena's big bookings go the stars work as if they have an understanding with their foe not to step too fast.

The Britton-Griffith attraction loomed up as the season's blue ribbon one. It proved a putrid, punk affair. Hammer was known to be a rugged, willing scrapper, while O'Leary was also rated a live wire. Both kids well appreciated what it meant to get off on the right foot in Boston. Hence, they went at it in hammer and tongs style from the clang of the initial ball. They battled as if the lightweight crown was at stake, that it had to be won inside of the limit via a kayo.

HAMMER SHOWED FANS.

Hammer and O'Leary took the house by storm. Ovation after ovation was showered upon them, the vary roof of the Arena shook with applause after each round. It was a chance. Murray, McLean & Co. was taking this thing of bringing two newcomers to town. But the supposed stars of flatiron had their Angoras. They were drawing down big exhibition money; putting up only an occasional good performance, and week by week business was falling off.

With Hammer and O'Leary pleasing, Murray went after another busy battler and he is confident he hooked a boy who will please in Shamus O'Brien. He's no hard boiled egg, say those among the fans who have seen him in action.

Two weeks ago Shamus gave O'Leary a stiff tussle at Rochester, N. Y. The first reports out of there were to the effect Shamus had mussed up the far Westerner pretty badly. However, that story turned out to have been the bunk. The bulk of the Rochester and Buffalo critics gave O'Leary the call, though at that Bryan drew a lot of happy press puffs and in some of the screeds was pictured the victor.

O'BRIEN A GOOD ONE.

Be that as it may, the fact remains O'Brien boxed ten rattling swift rounds with O'Leary, and if he comes through with flying colors tonight, as leastwise hustles his hardest all the way, there's everything to indicate the fans are down for another fine treat. Howard Carr has Hammer ready and the only way the Bristling Blend knows how to step when in action is the way he bit it up in his battle with O'Leary.

Hammer is a rushing, crushing battler of the stripe of good old Battling Nelson. He's not the most polished product in the game, nor particularly scientific. In addition, there's not so much brag about his defence, though his record shows he will take a beating any time one comes his way.

CARE SWEEP ON BOSTON.

Hammer came direct to Boston, passing up several lucrative bids from New York, as he figured this was the spot to locate in. Carr and Hammer well know all the luck Charley White had in Boston the past year and are out to steal their fellow townie's thunder.

The talent has installed Hammer a 10 to 5 favorite over O'Leary. That was the early day price. If the odds grow longer, per pre-ringster, the Hammer backers will be making a mistake. The price was overlaid last week.

While the 100 to 1 Hammer will please, Shamus O'Brien, by virtue of his battles with O'Leary and Benny Leonard, certainly shouldn't be figured worse than a 2 to 1 shot, especially as Hammer is far from the showiest workman among the lightweights; in fact, Ever is so long on willingness and so short on defence he's bound to lose a lot of decisions in these short, limited round contests.

GOULLET BOWS TO CHAMP

Best Australian Can Do in Match with Kramer Is One Dead Heat.

Suter-Reynolds Team Scores.

After their first scrimmage ended in a dead heat, the first of the season at the Revere cycle track, the big special match race between Frank Kramer, national champion, and Alf. Goullet, the Australian, ended in a victory for the former, the New Jerseyite placing the two following heats to his credit.

Kramer went out in the second heat and barely nosed out the speedy Australian flier at the tape.

The third and final heat Kramer led back and allowed Goullet to set the pace for each lap up to the final. Then the champion jumped his man, slipping him at the tape in another blanket finish.

The professional tandem team race was won by Paul Suter and H. J. Reynolds. Hardy Jackson and Ned Chandler, the opposing team in the match race, proved easy victims for the Swiss and American riders. The second heat was a pursuit race. It, too, was won by Suter and Reynolds.

Vincent Madonia, the Providence Italian, who divides his racing between sprint and motor-pace, annexed the thirty-mile handicap motor-paced race. Charles Turville, Jr., of Revere, was second and George Wiley third. Walthour was forced out of the race when nearing the finish by an accident to his motor. The summary:

One-half mile handicap race—Won by Fred McKenzie (scratch), Revere; second, Frank Keegan (65 yards), Revere; third, William Upton (90 yards), Revere. Time—1:04.

Special professional tandem race—Won by Suter and Reynolds; second, Chandler and Jackson. Time—2:03 2-5.

Special motor-paced match race—Won by John Madonia, Providence, R. I.; second, Irving Oriol Heights; second, Frank Jochem, New Haven, Ct.; third, William Cupit, Revere; fourth, Edward Harrison, Orient Heights. Time—17m. 42 4-5s.

Special sprint match, first heat—Frank Kramer, Orange, N. J., and Alfred Goullet, Australia; dead heat; time, 1m. 20s. Second heat—Won by Frank Kramer; second, Alfred Goullet; time, 2m. 2 2-5s. Third heat—Won by Frank Kramer; second, Alfred Goullet; time, 2m. 19 1-5s.

Thirty-mile motor-paced race—Won by Vincent Madonia, Providence, R. I.; second, Charles Turville, Jr., Revere; third, George Wiley, Syracuse, N. Y.; fourth, Bobby Walthour, Atlanta, Ga. Time—44m. 32 4-5s.

Agawam Courts Scene of Tidy Tennis Play

Providence, Aug. 8.—The first and second rounds in the State tennis championship were played on the Agawam Hunt courts, with the third round in the singles and the first round in the doubles left to be played for today.

Russel N. Dana, State champion; Stanley Henchaw, a title holder in the doubles; Douglass Watters, the South-ern champion; Leslie Winchenbaugh of Boston, who recently won the New Hampshire State singles champion-ship, and Harold Holmes of New Bed-ford, Mass. figured prominently in yesterday's play.

The feature match was between Watters and William Rand, Jr., of the Harvard tennis team, which Watters won, 6—2, 6—3.

The big surprise was the defeat of E. Tudor Gross of this city by Harold Holmes of New Bedford, Mass.

Miss Molla Bjurstedt, the woman champion, played a friendly match with Harry Gross, winning, 6—3, 6—2.

SEEKS GOES FOR EMERY.

Tim Looney has added Johnny Emery, the Somerville featherweight, to his string and states he will be ready to send his charge against Young Britt, the clever New Bedford battler, in two weeks' time. Looney also seeks matches with Johnny Donovan and Johnny Downie on behalf of Emery. In addition he wants to send Georges Robinson against "Wild Burt" Kenney.

Big List in Regatta
E. Y. C. Event on Today

Marblehead, Aug. 8.—Fourteen classes will start in the annual mid-summer open regatta of the Eastern Yacht Club this afternoon off Marblehead Rock. It is expected that more than 100 boats will participate. All the boats which raced at Gloucester yesterday have entered and a large number of racing crafts will make their first appearance of the season today.

"P" BOAT FIRST.

Although the Eastern Yacht Club has a race scheduled for classes M and N, there is no likelihood of any of these, big boats starting as they are down in the Sound with the New York Yacht Club. If there are no M and N boats racing the "P" boats will be the first class to get under way. With the exception of the Stranger, all the "P" boats raced yesterday in the Gloucester Yacht Club regatta, and the entire fleet of nine boats will be in action this afternoon, as the Stranger has sent her s.

JONES SLOOP IN FIRST.

The victory scored by the Nutmeg III. yesterday combined with the poor showing of the Bernice and the protest entered by the Hayseed IV. against the Ellen, for passing the Red Spar Buoy off the Gloucester Breakwater to port instead of starboard, caused the Jones sloop to go into first place. As light winds are predicted for the week, Commodore Jones, Nutmeg III., should make some fine showings this week, as the boat can outclass anything in the fleet in light air. With the exception of Commodore Jones all the "P" skippers are praying for heavy air.

Although the Flight won the Bar Harbor Class event yesterday in a most handy style, finishing well up with the "P" boats, the speed display by the Mildred IV. before she ran into a series of soft spots, caused Captain Joseph V. Santry of the Flight much worry. The Mildred IV., carried a new set of sails and besides showing fine speed she afforded a beautiful sight. There will be six and possibly seven starters in the Bar Harbor Class today.

The Cricket will make her first start of the season and there is a possibility of the Edjacks in the race.

FAVORABLY REGARDED.

The Arcyto certainly was traveling yesterday. This speedy Class A boat was up with the "P" and Bar Harbor boats after getting outside Gloucester harbor, and the easy manner with which she held her own with the more modern and supposedly much faster "P" and Bar Harbor sloops caused a great deal of favorable comment. The Tyro was badly outclassed by the Arcyto, but, despite her beating, the Keyes boat showed excellently.

The finish of the Meemer and Sally VII., in Class C, was about as close as a race could be without the judges declaring the boats to be on even terms at the line. The Meemer was the victor by about three feet, and was it not for the Tyro blanketing the Sally's spinnaker the result might have been reversed.

SPORTS FOOD

HUMAN NATURE.

He gaily packed his grips and things and went on his vacation,
And suffered varied forms of pain and untold privation.

Mosquitoes bit him fore and aft in almost every section,
He ate a flock of rotten grub and drank a lot of water
That reeked with microbes, germs and things that yearned for human slaughter.

He lay upon a bunk at night and tossed in fevered slumber,
And wondered how a bunk could have so great a population.

Two weeks he spent in woodland glades—he had no time for catching
The musky, trout or big black bass—he spent his time in scratching.

Then, sore at heart and pocket, he returned to his employment
And told the gang for weeks about his fortnight of enjoyment.

IT IS EASIER TO CONDUCT A COLUMN.

Vacations are vain,
They give you a pain.

If those man-eating sharks on the Jersey coast don't have a care one of them will run into a mosquito and get his block knocked off.

Fielder Jones has one conclusion. Even if he were to shoot all his athletes at sunrise he couldn't finish in last place.

BY JESS WILLARD.

Lives of champions remind me.
That they were a lot of gunks.
I can leave the ring behind me
And collect the kale in chunks.

Speaking of champions, reminds us of a refrain which we heard some ago in a play called "The Burgomaster," or something like that. The refrain runs as follows: "We always work the public—not the job."

Possibly when the weather grows cooler the Braves will play three games per day instead of two.

We contend that motor cars are more valuable in warfare than machine guns. We'd like to see an army corps trying to cross Gaffney street at 5:30 p. m.

HOW TO BECOME A BALL PLAYER.

Baseball, as the public knows, is a profitable profession. Some of our baseball stars draw almost half as much salary as the newspapers say they are getting.

If you are young, strong, sound in wind and limb and disinclined to work, we advise you to become a ball player.

It is a simple matter to become a successful ball player. The recipe is as follows:

Imitate Ty Cobb or Tris Speaker.

Some time ago there was a popular song entitled: "I'm On My Way to Mexico." Now they are singing: "Home, Sweet Home."

A good many of our safer boys are beginning to suspect that a war, or even a near-war, is not a week-end party.

INTERRUPTIONS.

It is pleasant to work on a Summer day,
When the sweat trickles down from your fevered brow
And a thousand rude persons come in and say:
"Well, whaddayathink of the Red Sox now?"

Lightweight Premier Plans Being Cherry Ripe for Labor Day Bout —Figures White a Set-Up.

By RINGSIDE.

Freddie Welsh, now sure of his condition, and never better, according to New York judges who saw him beat up Leonard, plans going to Saratoga Springs this week to condition himself for his Labor Day scrap with Charley White at Colorado Springs. White is already at the spa.

A terrific puncher, the Chicago boy is always dangerous. Still, Welsh has always had it easy time with White. He is a faster thinker and certainly a faster all-round boxer.

There isn't a move of White's Welsh doesn't know. Welsh says himself he always knows beforehand what White is going to do next.

"I always wait for him to start," said Welsh to a New York writer Monday. "If he shoots a left, so do I, except that I always beat him to the punch. Once out-timed White is a mark in a mix. He's play for me, despite what anybody thinks."

M'AULIFFE MAKES HOLLER.

Jack McAuliffe, who retired undefeated as the lightweight champion of the world, does not think much of the manly art as it is demonstrated in these effeminate days. Jack was one of the guests of honor at the recent Welsh-Leonard affair in New York.

While the boys were waltzing about the ring Jack held forth on his seventy-four-round bout with Jem Carney of England. The affair was called a draw after the spectators tore down the ring, and as the men were fighting for a side bet they got nothing but the exercise.

As he finished the tale McAuliffe looked at his watch and yawned, "When do these two boys begin to box?" asked McAuliffe.

GETS OLD JACK'S GOAT.

"They're boxing now," declared his host.

"I'm glad to know that," replied McAuliffe, "I had an idea they were playing tag."

As the bell clanged at the end of the tenth, McAuliffe asked furiously, "And how much do those boys get for the show?"

"Well, not very much tonight," replied his host. "Leonard probably gets only about $5,000 and Welsh a mere $2,000, or something like that."

With a maniacal scream Jack McAuliffe left the grounds and, running to the cent district at Bridge, dove a hundred feet deeper than Steve Brodie. Just as he hit the water he screamed, "Only ten thousand bucks—and that's all."

GRAND CIRCUIT MEET HELD UP BY A SHOWER

Pittsburgh, Aug. 8.—The Grand Circuit racing meet which was scheduled to open here yesterday was postponed on account of rain. The stake events which were to have been decided will be run off today. The meet promises to be one of the best of the year. All the famous trotters and pacers in the country are entered for the different specials, and most of them already are on the ground and in fine condition.

Willard-Weinert Bout
Jess Gets $50,000 Bid

New York, Aug. 8.—The Willard-Weinert match is the latest dream of the syndicate which is managing the heavyweight champion.

Weinert, the boy boxer of Jersey, is to take a chance at being assassinated, and Willard may listen to an offer of $50,000 made by Eddie Fitts, promotor of the Welsh-White fight at Colorado Springs on Labor Day.

Tom Jones and Jess Willard have said all Summer the champion would quit the circus any time they felt sure they could make more money out of boxing.

This offer exceeds the purse put up by "Tex" Rickard for Willard's bit of the Willard-Moran fight by $2,500. Consequently, there is quite a chance Willard will join the elephant gang by and leave the circus flat at the end of the season to accept the new offer.

Charley Weinert, the daring young gent who will flirt with death in the shape of ten rounds with the champion, is a comer. He possesses all the cleverness of Jim Corbett and he has plenty of stamina.

The two black marks in his career are two defeats by Jack Dillon. One of these happened when Weinert was a mere novice—the second was due to the fact that Weinert, always a happy-go-lucky youngster, went into the ring out of condition.

GRUNAN ON WITH DUFFY

New York, Aug. 8.—At the Pioneer Sporting Club tonight Ralph Grunan, the Portland, Ore., lightweight, will meet Jimmy Duffy of New York.

EXTREMES meet in the etiquette of apartment houses. In middle class districts, neat little cards in entrance halls and on doorways aid the visitor to find the family for whom he is seeking. But the apartments of the very poor, like the apartments of the very rich, offer no such guidance.

When you call upon Mrs. De Millions, a uniformed attendant at the door directs you to the floor and corridor giving upon her apartment. But when you go to see Mrs. Zero you have to trust to the guidance of the neighbors' children or your own instinct.

I climbed four flights of stairs before I located Marie Bocetti. Then I had a very pleasant surprise. An extremely neat looking young woman, pretty and sweet and fresh, opened the door leading to a hallway that was immaculately clean. She greeted me at once with a smile illuminated by flashing white teeth and a manner so friendly and gracious that a grande dame might have envied it. There seemed no question of who I was or what was my business—I was a visitor and therefore welcome.

My hostess led me into a plainly furnished room, which had a certain warm, pleasing atmosphere of home.

I handed Marie her letter. She stared at it a moment in great amazement. Then she fairly gasped out: "You not Mees Fairfax?"

"Yes, I am."

She Kisses Her Hand

She seized my hand and fell to kissing it with the warm impulsiveness of her southern blood. "You come to helpa me? Justa to helpa me—Marie Bocetti? Oh! the blessed saints all time to goodta to me—and I not believe."

Then she burst into a tempest of tears. It was quite easy to see that this simple, elemental young woman would suffer tortures at even fancied indifference on the part of her husband.

My hostess was dressed for the street—hatted and coated. I kept trying to calm her volubility and excitement, and at last I succeeded in discovering why she was attired in this way.

Her impatience and suspicions had at last come to be more than Marie could endure. She kept imagining her husband, her Arturo, in the arms of a rival and now she was going to see.

With the trusting face of a child she burst out: "But it alla right now you here. You comta, too? We go to the Theatro di Venezia."

"But why are we going to the Venetian Theatre, Marie? Don't you think you'd better tell me a little more about it first—so I can really help you?"

"Oh, yes. I forgetta you not know. Arturo play da violin in restro."

Marie drew herself up with evident pride. It was quite clear that she adored her Arturo, and that even in the midst of of her anguish she was proud of him and of his superiority to the ordinary souls in the quarter where they lived.

The Whole Story

"Marie," I said firmly, "you must sit down and compose yourself. We can't start out until I know not only where we are going, but why. Now, tell me your story from the very beginning, and then I'll help you decide on a plan."

"Yes—thata best. Marie tella you all."

She smiled in the trusting way children and primitive souls have, and told me her story.

Up to that very morning, life for Arturo and Marie Bocetti had been wonderfully happy. They had prospered in the new country where they were making their home, and Arturo was winning fame for himself as well as money. He played in the orchestra at the Venetian Theatre and gave lessons on the violin. Marie often accompanied him on the piano, to which she pointed proudly, and she assured me that they would play for me some day if only he came back to her.

"You don't know that he's gone away from you, dear," I said in a practical tone that made me feel almost as if grandmother were speaking.

A moment of tempest and sunshine combined followed, and then Marie went on with her story. That morning the postman had brought a letter, which was the beginning of all her troubles. When she gave it to Arturo she noticed how curiously he looked at the envelope. He put down his violin abruptly—with far less care than he generally gave to his beloved fiddle.

He stood looking at the envelope a moment or two, then tore it open and started violently as he read it. Marie hurried to his side, but he crumpled the letter, shoved it into his pocket and answered nervously and hastily that it was a business letter.

"He never hava da secret from me," cried Marie. "I start to question him some more, but he leava da room. I begin to think why he not show me letter—and then I decide he hava da sweetheart. That letter from her!"

"Oh, no, Marie—that isn't fair. Don't you see you're just building up a story for yourself on one tiny little episode? There may have been an explanation for Arturo's actions."

Beatrice Fairfax (Grace Darling) attempts to comfort the distracted Marie

Marie shook her head.

It appeared that presently, when her husband came back, she had gone to him with all the self-control she could muster. She was ready to give him the benefit of the doubt. he put her hands on his shoulders and looked at him. But the eyes which always met her gaze frankly and steadily, avoided hers.

A Vain Effort

He tried to smile openly and honestly as her Arturo always smiled. But he could not manage it. Then he tried to speak, but there seemed to be nothing he could say. Finally he kissed her on the cheek—without any of the warmth and love she had always been given. A moment later he took off her clinging arms and hurried from the room.

"Then I go to our—how you say—strongs box—and he hava take mucha our money—for her—to buy her mucha pretty! Is notta that guilt?" laughed Marie almost triumphantly.

I fancied that like most untutored souls, she actually found a certain pride in her misery!

Questioning revealed that Arturo had not forgotten his violin. Marie seemed for the time being almost jealous of that!

I could make very little of her story. There was a certain suggestion of furtiveness and guilt in Arturo's conduct. But my work has taught me never to judge anyone guilty of evil until I have proven conclusively that his actions may not be equally well attributed to good motives.

I felt sure there must be an explanation. What it was I could not imagine, but I tried to persuade Marie that she owed it to herself and to her love itself to try to have a little faith.

"Shall we meet him at the theatre now?" I asked.

The girl agreed eagerly, and we hurried down to the dark street again.

After the warmth and hominess of the Bocetti apartment, its grim menace of evil seemed more potent than when first I had come into that sinister neighborhood. I looked at Marie to see if she sensed it—but her only emotions seemed to be relief at the fact that she was going to Arturo and faith in my ability to make a miracle happen and restore her trust in him.

On and on we went, turning corners and rushing up side streets.

At last we came to a corner intersected by an alley and as Marie explained led to the stage entrance of the Teatro di Venezia. She pointed proudly to the scene of her husband's triumphs. Sions of her happy optimism gave me a sudden feeling that we had come to a pleasant termination of our adventure. I could not guess that we were scarcely at its beginning!

Then I noticed a man lurking in the darkness. The shadows almost concealed him, but they gave me a terrifying glimpse of a heavy, brutal countenance. What could he be doing there? For whom was he waiting?

Good Housekeeping Recipes

Good food properly cooked goes far toward insuring health and long years. As much depends on the cooking, however, as on the food itself. The following recipes have been tested and approved by Good Housekeeping Institute, conducted by GOOD HOUSEKEEPING, and are republished here by special arrangement with that publication, the Nation's Greatest Home Magazine.

All measurements are level, standard half-pint measuring cups, tablespoons, and teaspoons being used. Sixteen level tablespoonfuls equal a half-pint. Quantities are sufficient for six people unless otherwise stated. Flour is sifted once before measuring.

Fisher Meringue Icing

PART I.
1½ cupfuls sugar.
Granulated sugar is powderful sugar, is cup-looking powder.
½ cupful water.

PART II.
1 egg white.
1 egg whites, 2 drops rose
2 tablespoonfuls water.

Make a syrup of the sugar and water in part one (that will crack, or be brittle when dropped in ice water. Whip the egg whites in part two until stiff, and then pour and whip again, and then whip in the baking powder. This should be done by the time the syrup in the blood. Gradually beat in the syrup until it is entirely taken up and the mixture will hold its shape when lifted up on the egg whip. Then add the egg white (unwhipped) and rosewater of part three, beating it in thoroughly with an egg beater. In using the icing spread a thin coating over the top and sides of the cake to reduce the crumbs, then pour a quantity onto the top of the cake. Spread with a long spatula, allowing it to turn over the edges. The sides can then be heavily covered.

Russian Cucumbers

Three medium-sized cucumbers, one and one-half cupfuls light cream, three-quarters teaspoonful salt, one-eighth teaspoonful pepper, one-half teaspoonful sugar, add seasonings and butter, cover, and bake gently for thirty minutes; then remove lid and cook till tender.

The Biography of a Sinner

By ANN LISLE

Copyright, 1916, International News Service

Sudden bitterness against Rex came over me. Who hadn't he torn up that contemptible letter of Norton's and rooted it out of his memory? Why had he let it matter? Then I heard Jim speaking.

"Vera, your brother's a wonderful chap. A girl's lucky to have a friend like that. He adores you."

"Yes, I know," I said coldly. What did I care for Rex's adoration when it was Jim's love I wanted?

"He doesn't want me to see you any more, Vera. He has made me feel that it is not fair to you—people are beginning to talk.

It can't do you any possible good to be seen—with a married man. I like you too well to do you the useless—of asking you for your—friendship."

He didn't care! Suddenly my heart went cold. Jim couldn't give me up like this if he cared. What were right and wrong as compared to love if the love were big enough to defy convention? I did not see what burnt out embers Jim's eyes were in his tired, gray face. The lines of bitterness around his mouth meant struggle and renunciation; but I did not know that. I hated his strength, since it could put me out of his life, when I wanted it to rebuild me and sweep me into it instead.

HER HEART GOES COLD

"Then this is good-bye." I latched lightly. "I wish I have known you'd get tired of a little country girl like me. . . . Good-bye, Mr. Donaldson. We've had some good times this year—and I thought you cared about me a little. Oh, only as a friend—I understood that . . . good-bye."

"Are you going to send me off like that, Vera—bitterly, coldly?"

"Does it matter much how you go—so long as you are going? You might as well go now. Geoff Hardin had invited me to a little dance one of his sister's friends are giving—I think I'll phone him that I can go after all."

A younger man might have judged me by my light words—might have accepted my dismissal with a sneering relief. But I did not rouse either anger or the demon of jealousy for which I was hoping.

I hated Jim all came over and took my hand in both of his. "I want you to be happy, dear, that's why I'm saying good-bye. . . . You would not be happy if you knew people were criticising you and saying cruel things of you. We've had a wonderful friendship—but it was not fair to you. I was a cad to try to—lighten my loneliness.

And then suddenly all my pity for myself vanished.

It was Jim who had the real suffering to meet. He was tied to the hideous ghost of a dead romance. His story had written itself in the hard lines about his mouth, the gray at his temples and the pain in his eyes. I loved him and I wanted him to be happy—I felt the martyr spirit of all the women who have ever loved—I desired the joy of making my friends happy and so finding my own happiness. I caught his hand in mine and held it against my cheek. "I don't want you to be lonely," I whispered.

SHE CONFESSES HER LOVE

In another moment I was in his arms. He was holding me close and his kisses were falling down on my hair and eyelids until at last I lifted my lips to meet his.

"I love you, Jim," I whispered.

"And I love you, too, dear." His arms went closer about me. In the vast silence of love, I could hear the heavy thudding of his heart.

Then I heard myself murmuring wild things. I was telling him that nothing mattered but our love—that I was his, his for always—his to do with as he would. The arms that had felt like bonds of steel as they drew me to him began to tremble.

Suddenly Jim pushed me away and sank down on the couch. He seemed shaken by the storm of his own feelings. He buried his face in his arms, and when he looked up I knew that he had been sobbing. At last he got to his feet.

JIM ACTS THE MAN

"Forgive me dear. Rex trusted me—and I trusted myself. I didn't know my love was so strong and I so weak. I must go now, Vera—it isn't safe for me to stay. You're so young, dear—so beautiful. You have not known what we were doing. But I—we—I should have protected you."

That night, and many nights after it, I lay sleepless. I wanted Jim as I had never wanted anything in all the world. He wrote me one beautiful letter of farewell — and after that there was silence between us.

I longed so for Jim that I felt I could not bear it. Weeks passed. I could not eat or sleep. I felt myself growing haggard and old.

Rex tried desperately to make me happy. He brought me delicious fruits and took me to the roof gardens for dinner. Once I began to sob in the middle of the meal, and Rex had to pay the check and bring me home.

"I'm sorry, dear—$3 for a dinner we didn't even eat. How can you afford it, Rex?"

REX IS GENEROUS

"I can afford anything that'll make my Vee-vee happy. Besides, I'm getting commissions on the bonds I sell—three last week, and it looks like even a bigger lot this I'm making $50 or $60 a week over my salary. Old Brother Rex is some financier . . . . he can manage anything but to give joy to the people he loves most."

I knew that he meant Mildred and me. . . . He had to endure the pain of feeling that he had failed us both. I realized it was selfish to let Rex see how miserably unhappy I was in spite of all his wonderful efforts to make me forget, but I did not arouse myself from my lethargy of pain. I could not do that—not even for Rex.

One morning my brother told me that mother had arranged with Mrs. Frances for me to spend two weeks at Lake Harbor with her and Mildred. I did not want to go, since that meant being away from town and the chance of seeing Jim. Rex insisted that the change would do me a lot of good.

The Lazy Sexton

Here is the story of a gravedigger who, after hard toil at a grave, found all his labor in vain owing to the soil slipping and almost filling in the grave again.

After indulging in such languages as a church sexton might reasonably use, he got a bright idea.

Placing his cap and jacket near the edge of the grave and hiding his spade, he forthwith proceeded to hide himself.

In a few minutes up came a visitor to the graveyard. Seeing the fallen-in grave and the cap and jacket, he raised an alarm that the sexton was buried alive. Brawny arms and spades were soon forthcoming, and in a short time the grave was once more dug out, but no sexton was found.

Their perplexity gave way to indignation when the sexton emerged from a clump of trees with a pleased grin on his face and thanked them!

Orders

Mrs. Robinson rushed from her bedroom in a state of great indignation, and shouted.

"Bridget, Bridget, come here this minute!"

Bridget came.

"I thought you said you'd cleaned this room?" continued Mrs. Robinson. "But just look under the bed; the floor is simply thick with dust. Haven't I told you that you must always sweep under the beds?"

"Well, mum," replied Bridget, in tearful indignation, "and how, I should like to know, could the dust have got under the bed if I hadn't swept it there?"

A Seven-Year Husband Hunt

Girl Workers Who Win

By JANE M'LEAN

The steamer was large and the duties were many. There were ever so many stateroom to oversee—countless trays to be carried, and numerous errands to run. It seems that there was no rest at all for Christine's weary feet and no one on the boat seemed to consider her at all. It was "Stewardess, will you come here, please?" or "I rang for you, where have you been?" until Christine had a tired, choked feeling in her throat.

The reason she had taken the position in the first place was because she had needed a sea trip and there had been no money.

"It doesn't matter how you go," the doctor had declared, "just so that you get out to sea with plenty of salt air."

When wages and means had been discussed, the idea of being a stewardess had occurred to Christine's old father. Aside from the fact that Christine was recovering from a siege of fever, the girl was ordinarily strong, and it would do her no harm to become healthily tired, so that she slept well at night. Christine had a knack of caring for sick people.

Her blond hair was smooth, and she wore it curled in a braid about her well-shaped head. Her eyes were dark and calm, and her clothes were immaculate. From the time that she had set sail, she had been popular with the most cantankerous passengers, in spite of the encroachments on her time, they liked the girl and meant well by her if a generous tip at the end of the voyage would compensate for her running at everyone's beck and call.

On board the Arcadia a famous physician was traveling with his wife, who was not at all well and required the services of the stewardess almost constantly. Christine had never been known to disregard her summons.

The doctor soon grew to notice the girl's peculiar daintiness, the knack she seemed to have in the sickroom, her strong personality, the calm that one felt at the touch of her soft hands. There was no doubt about it she was a definite person, a woman who would count in the world by reason of her marked characteristics. Gradually the physician developed a friendly interest in her which the girl at first ignored and finally shyly responded to. He asked her questions about her life and discovered the reason for her position.

"And what are you going to do afterward?" he inquired. "You are perfectly well now and a splendid physical specimen as far as I can see."

"I shall go back to my work in the office," the girl responded. "I am a clerical worker."

"Do you like the work on the steamer?"

"Yes, I do" the girl responded: "it's hard and satisfying. I like to make people comfortable—perhaps I might keep on with the work, I don't know."

"How would you like to take a position with me?" the great man asked, smiling across at his wife, who lay with her pale face against a pillow scarcely whiter, and smiled back at him.

"What kind of a position" asked the girl, sensing herself at the kindly interest evident in both faces.

"Did you ever happen to hear about me?" the doctor went on. "My name is Everitt."

"Not the great nerve specialist?" the girl said incredulously.

"The very same. I'm afraid," smiling at her surprise, "I have watched you carefully on this trip and you are a woman in a thousand. You are capable, efficient, and have a definite personality. I need a woman like you to take charge of some of my work in special cases. I feel that I can trust you. Do you think you would like it?"

"I don't know why you are so good to me," the girl said simply. "But I should like it above all things. And I'll try so hard to make good."

The great doctor nodded his head sagely. He had known that before.

(The next article in this series will be called "The Artist.")

The Dream Children

The pathos of childlessness could scarcely be expressed in words so affectingly as it is depicted by the devices of photography in the enchanting scene of "When Dream Children" at the Majestic Theatre.

The tableau is both beautiful and appealing, and one who could witness it unmoved could hardly be considered of the right sex.

A husband and wife are sitting before a fireplace. The man has always loved and longed for children, the woman has preferred to avoid motherhood's cares. That is the subject of the drama, and some of the developments of the incidents are none too pleasant. But now the drama has been played out. The man and woman, who might have been father and mother, sit alone and silent. The shadowy forms of dream children appear in the dusk. Little boys and girls dressed of substance flock about the floor where real boys and girls have never played. A sweet little school girl climbs upon the arm of the man's chair and snuggles against his shoulder. He turns his head to kiss her, but she has gone. All the children of his vision have disappeared.

The man and the woman grow old before the spectator's eyes. The fireplace and the room are unchanged, but the man's hair is white now, and his figure no longer straight. The wife has become an old lady and wears a cap. Still they sit before the fire, finding nothing to say to each other, only thinking and dreaming. Again the room is filled with dream boys and girls and splendid young women now. Again the dream daughter, who might have been real, perches herself upon the dreaming man's chair arm. Once more she turns to gather her in his arms. Once more she vanishes with the other children who might have been.

Man and woman who have lived so far through the age of parenthood without becoming parents will doubtless find this scene very comforting, as it soothes childless regret, but they should. They will, it is presumed, be moved to contrition or grief, according to whether childlessness has been voluntary or otherwise, for whatever cause or reason. There is nothing like self-pity as an incentive to regret. The beautiful fantasy of the dream children will be of good effect if its powerful drawing of the tragedy of childlessness aside from renewing the cheerful task of parenthood in the hearts of mothers and fathers, serves to suggest in time to be of avail to many that the selfishness which shirks marriage or parentage deplores its own ghastly penalty.

In Our Wonderful World

Regimental pets on many occasions have distinguished themselves on the battlefield. In one instance a regimental dog proved to be one of the few survivors of a terrible British disaster when the famous Sixty-sixth were cut up in the battle of Maiwand. Valiant Bob, the pet of the regiment, sat and howled dismally in the centre of the rapidly dwindling square, where the British stood back to back, fighting against hordes of Afghans. When every man had fallen, Bob crawled over the bodies of the dead, and, although wounded in the leg, travelled over many miles of country to Candahar.

In the battle of Inkerman, Sandy, the terrier mascot of the Royal Engineers, thoroughly enjoyed himself by running after the Russians and snapping at their legs. He was eventually run through by the bayonet of an exasperated Russian, but barely recovered, and had a special medal struck for him by the colonel of the regiment at the conclusion of the campaign.

Brave, the enormous mastiff who displayed similar fighting talents in the battle of Kandahar, met with a less fortunate fate, and was killed and buried on the historic battlefield. A poodle who hobbled about on three legs was for some years a familiar spectacle at Chelsea Barracks. The guards captured the animal in the battle of Vittoria, and adopted him as their regimental pet. He went through the campaign with the regiment, but had two legs broken by a shot through refusing on one occasion to remain in the rear when the hounds were sounded, but dashed to the front of the galloping horses.

At the battle of Tel-el-Kebir a private of an Irish regiment went into the fight with a little black kitten concealed in his tunic as a mascot. He came through the battle unscathed, and so did his furry, four-footed friend.

Medical observation is exercised over the facts that in all bullet-wounds it is found that the velocity of projection with which the bullet has made increases in proportion to the length of the barrel of the rifle from which the bullet goes right through body or limb the aperture at the exit is considerably larger than at the entrances. A bullet at 200 to 400 yards makes a passage smaller than itself, over 1,000 yards it exceeds the diameter of the bullet, and when the bullet is nearly at the end of its range the wound is very large.

The explanation is quite simple. The spiral rifling in the barrel causes the bullet to spin, and the spin is maintained throughout its course. But the resistance of the air pressing on the point of the bullet in front tends to slow it, whilst the momentum of the back part of the projectile pushes it forward. This causes a wobble in the bullet, the point of which soon begins to describe a small circle in the air.

At short range there is little time for this eccentricity to develop appreciably, hence the bullet only makes way for its own circumference, but at long range the aperture has to be wide enough to accommodate the bullet and its eccentric motion.

The beautifully thin paper known as Oxford India paper was for many years made only in England, but is now made in several other countries.

It is officially stated that the "Red Cross Dog League," which began as a movement to help war with eight dogs, has now two thousand five hundred in the field. The lives of at least eight thousand wounded men have, it is said, been saved by these dogs.

PHYSICAL TEST FOR MILITIA

By BERT FORD.

Second Massachusetts Brigade Headquarters, El Paso, Tex., Aug. 8.—Physical examination of the 7,000 or more men of the Second Massachusetts Brigade by the Federal army was resumed today in the recreation pavilion erected by the National Council of the Knights of Columbus, at Camp Cotton. It knocked spots out of all previous physical tests in scope and exactness.

It is so rigid that the prediction is made that a few officers and men may be rejected and sent home.

General E. Leroy Sweetser, commanding the brigade, and Colonel Edward L. Logan, commanding the Ninth Regiment, were the first officers examined and they are reported to have passed with flying colors.

TO EXAMINE OTHER OFFICERS.

Examination of their staffs and the other officers will follow those of the enlisted men. L Company of Natick, Captain James F. Hickey, was the first put through the Federal mill, and the second was C Company of Boston, Lieutenant W. J. Kievenaar.

Each company was marched to the pavilion and enough men admitted to enable the corps of medical experts to work. The soldiers removed their clothing near the entrance, hopped on scales to be weighed, and measured as to height and then, like a lot of L street disciples, they stood in line and waited for the general overhauling.

First they reached a doctor who thumped them from head to foot and tested their lungs and heart with instruments. Next blood tests were made by pricking their arms and the third doctor took note of every mark and blemish. The fourth was a phrenologist who took the account of head bumps and peculiarities and the color of eyes and hair and complexion. Another made them squint at illuminated cards on the wall and held a blotter over one eye and then the other to test their vision.

In the centre of the floor each was put through a calisthenic drill and made to do everything but a handspring and then finger prints were taken and all recorded. The physical fitness of the Massachusetts men was remarked by some of the army officers. In L Company only two seemed doubtful, but will be accepted, and in C Company and the other companies of the Ninth that followed, the high average was sustained.

The Federal examinations are in charge of Captain Hill of the Thirty-Fourth Infantry, assisted by Lieutenants Edmundson and Norville, and the surgeons and physicians of the Massachusetts Infantry regiments.

The Eighth and Fifth Regiments will be tackled next and then the Bay State units at Camp Pershing will be examined. While the Federal tests were in progress, Major W. W. Reno, expert chiropodist, lectured to the Massachusetts officers in the officers' Club. General George Bell, Jr., and General Sweetser sat on a front bench. Major Reno discussed the importance of caring for the feet of soldiers.

SMALL SHOES HARMFUL.

He said 72 per cent. of a regiment directed to buy their own shoes purchased shoes too short or too narrow ones. He said it was a human tendency to buy shoes for appearance rather than comfort. On this account the standards set for the army by the Munson board should be followed, he said.

The sanitary corps of the Ninth was amused today to receive a bill from the International Brick Company for one dollar for "a load of brickbats," as the bill cited. Sergeant John J. Murphy said the bricks were such as you could pick up in any lot at home and that the regiment truck hauled them for hospital purposes. Every night the property of this company is guarded by Bay State soldiers, but they sent that bill for "brickbats" and gave another demonstration of El Paso greed.

Sergeant Murphy and the other boys of the sanitary corps take lessons daily from a troop of Mexican bootblacks, who teach them the mysteries of the language for pennies and nickels.

It was learned today that early reports about the injuries sustained by Sergeants Samuel W. Gilmore and Langdon O'Reilly of the Fifth Regiment in an automobile collision Sunday, were exaggerated. Both were well enough to report for duty.

The following telegram from Adjutant-General Chas. H. Cole pleased Colonel John H. Sherburne and the members of Battery A of the Field Artillery:

"I am proud my last official act is a message of sincere congratulations to the men of Battery A of your command for their unselfish and patriotic action in refusing to accept their right to come home in advance of other troops. It is splendid and thoroughly typical of the spirit of Massachusetts."

Second Regiment Rushes Work on New Camp

By FRANCIS M'QUAID.

Columbus, N. M., Aug. 8.—The entire Second Regiment, with the exception of Company G, which was at the rifle range instead of drilling, was put to work clearing away cactus mesquite brush and Spanish bayonet trees from the new campground, which is about two miles west of the town. It is very probable that the regiment will soon move to the new location, where two new wells have been drilled and where water is said to be good, besides having a slightly higher elevation.

Company G returned from the rifle range in charge of Captain Benson Munyon and the recruits proved excellent marksmen. Company M will be at the range next. The mounted scouts of the headquarters company received their horses, the mounts being of the finest. Joseph Granger of G Company will be operated on for tonsilitis, he being taken sick on a "hike" Sunday. His condition is not serious.

Joseph Griffin of the supply company caught a fine specimen of the Mexican rabbit hawk out in the desert and will present it to the Forest Park Zoo, Springfield.

MERRY SHOW AT KEITH'S AMUSES

TEMPEST AND SUNSHINE that dainty, bewitching one of Broadway favorites, are heading an unusually clever bill at Keith's this week. Their offering, entitling "A Broadway Bouquet," is a cleverly arranged series of songs and musical comedy specialties designed to bring forth the best qualifying numbers and specialties of these two artists.

They introduce as a feature early in the act one written by Marion Sunshine and Henry Leone, entitled "Somewhere There's a Little Cottage Standing."

Clarke and Verdi, well-known to Boston theatre-goers as one of the first Italian dialect teams, were warmly greeted and their funny dialect act, which is clever play is made one worth and songs has lost none of its old-time savor.

Bert Melrose and his famous Melrose fall kept the audience in a state of nervous fear for the few minutes he apparently defied the seemingly gravitation while perched on his chair at the top of a pedestal of tables. But ending to his usual fall to the stage.

Willie Solar, late star of the London Hippodrome, made his first appearance in this city in his specialty in the fact that he achieved success at the Boston opera before the start of the war. He showed the Boston people the English style of singing a few American rag-time songs now sung.

Other numbers on the bill are Adelaide Boothby, assisted by Charles Everding, in a miniature playlet with "Becky at the Movies," Bessie Ward and Farron playing "Dots and Dashes," Ryan and Lee in cartoons, Feller D'Amour, a pleasing set of pictures, consisting of human and artificial art, Lieutenant Eldridge and Frances Nordstrom and company in a dramatic sketch.

The Hearst International Pictorial, showing up-to-date news pictures, rounded out a well-balanced program.

ORPHEUM THEATRE—Topping a bill of sterling vaudeville numbers for the Orpheum Theatre yesterday was a unique offering that could not fail of the most popular appeal in the Old Time Festival. This is a company of ten people who give a replica of the old-time entertainments that pleased our fathers in the days of their youth. The Countess Gucci, a beautiful young society woman, presented a musical act that easily sailed into popular favor. She was assisted by Mr. Monday and Company presented the one act play, let of the bill, a comedy drama well written and with a fresh plot that hit home. The remainder of the bill included Henry Frey, the German comedian, Thilbrick and De Voe in comedy talking and singing; Rogers and Hughes in a number of new songs and pianologue; Espe and Dutton, and others. Charlie Chaplin in his latest photo farce was easily the comedy hit of the bill. "One A. M." is its title, as may be inferred from the hour named, it dealt with strange doings, which in the case of the comedian, were equally funny as strange.

GORDON'S OLYMPIA—There is a double-header at Gordon's Olympia every day this week, and everybody is a winner. There is such a demand to see Mary Pickford as the little Dutch girl, "Hulda From Holland," which she appeared last week, and there was nothing to do but hold the film over another week and the public's attendance proved the wisdom of this decision.

The other feature of the double-header was that sterling actress Pauline Frederick in "The Woman in Bronze," also pictured from Clyde Fitch's famous play in which the late Blanche Walsh appeared for a long time on the stage several years ago. Miss Frederick has made the role of Lillian Chester, the part Miss Walsh made famous, Hughes, the leading one instead of a minor character. The rest of the picture is one of those wine and blandishments Margaret has to defend her self against. Lillian Chester is a splendid performance of the role, made especially in Miss Walsh's interpretation, and is a picture that will please all.

No matter the bill is complete now-adays without a Charlie Chaplin film, and Gordon's Olympia has one of the best of the Essanay-Chaplin series on this week in "One A. M." in which the comedian has ample opportunity for his funny antics.

MODERN THEATRE—William Farnum is a type of character which is fully as delightful and real when viewed on the screen at the Modern Theatre yesterday in the photo-drama, "The Sign of the Rose." Mr. Farnum will be one of the two first-run features at the Modern this week, and in this he plays the part of a young trapper of the famous Hudson Bay territory. He loves the beautiful daughter of a dead factor of the company. She had gone to live with her parents from disgrace. The first report that he had since died led her to keep any word from him, but he was her real love. The security of her happiness is destroyed when she learns that her husband is not dead. The sequence of events provides a stirring series of drama that leads to a mighty physical battle one of the Farnum kind, that culminates in victory for the young trapper and happiness for him and the girl. On the same bill and a part of the program for the week Wallace Reed and Cleo Ridgely appeared in "The House of Lost Court" by Gilbert Parker.

WILBUR THEATRE—The box office of Ye Wilbur Theatre opens today for the advance sale of seats for the latest New York musical comedy success which opens the season at that theatre next Monday evening, August 14. In the meantime there is an unprecedented number of orders by mail from the North Shore and Newport where society is specially interesting series of dinners that lead to both Marbury and F. Ray Comstock. A new team of Spanish dancers, who have never been in this country, will be seen in the first act of "Very Good Eddie." In addition to the New York cast which is coming over here. These terpsichorean dancers are billed as Laurette and Gallardo and it is one can believe all of the glowing adjectives which have preceded them from Spain. America and across the Atlantic from Gay Paree, these are the real dancers who are going to make all other dancers fade into insignificance.

PARK THEATRE—Miss Alice Brady, now the favorite of the screen and the Park patrons, heads the program this week, and is at her best in the famous play based on Dwight Tilton's book, "Miss Petticoats." She is supported by an all star cast. Among these are Arthur Ashley, Johnnie Hines and Alec B. Francis. This production was produced under the personal direction of William A. Brady. This photoplay was taken in New Bedford and New England, and is in a class by itself. Miss Alice Brady makes a fascinating picture of a runaway, and keeps you in suspense right through the entire production. Following on the program is the Metro feature, showing the dramatic artist Edith Barrymore and Grace Valentine in "Dorian's Dilemma," in a five-act production. In this production Mr. Barrymore is seen in a dual role, that of a prosperous young banker, who meets with reverses, assumes the garb of a highwayman for a time, and afterwards ships as sea as a soldier in a yacht which he formerly owned.

Next attraction on the program is Miss Billie Burke in the twelfth chapter of "Gloria's Romance," "The Lucky Spirit," better than all the previous chapters. Included is the well-known Max Figman in "Mistakes Will Happen," a drama that keeps you laughing. The picture program is completed with the Selig Tribune of Current Events, always up to the minute.

GLOBE THEATRE—Another bill of high class composed of photo features was shown at the Globe Theatre yesterday, the cordiality of the reception indicating the continuance of the summer policy. The bills are being changed entire three times a week, on Monday, Wednesday and Friday. This is a wise provision for the continued patronage of the Globe's many clientele. For the first three days of this week there is being shown Charlie Chaplin in the funniest farce, "One A. M." This is in addition to the regular bill which will have the features for Monday and Tuesday, Eratices Nelson in "The Design," Wednesday and Thursday, "The Faith Story in "The Two-Edged Sword"; Friday and Saturday, Harry D. Carey in "Love's Lariat."

MEDFORD BOULEVARD THEATRE—With the shrilling of bar-pipes and the waving of personality flags a score of charming lassies and lads in the first of the series of lessons in the intricacies of the native dances of Scotland the Kinkaid Kilties opened their week's engagement at the Medford Boulevard Summer Theatre with capacity attendances at each performance yesterday afternoon and evening. Heading the cast is Rose Melville, who is supported by a company comedy epitomized joy and thoroughness and of the antics do not elude a frown off your face with a grin they your cease is hopeless. Miss Melville's musical numbers were several of Harry Lauder's most popular songs.

ATTRACTIVE BILL AT BOSTON

ONE of the biggest and longest shows of pictures and vaudeville ever offered for one price of admission was shown at the Boston Theatre yesterday, headed by Lillian Walker. The act will be a big feature, being about in her new five-part Western romance, "Hesper of the Mountains," which is being shown for the first time in Boston; Charlie Chaplin in his new two-part comedy, "One A. M.," Raymond Hitchcock, appearing for the first time in Boston, exclusively in the Boston Theatre in "The Mysterious Mr. Bunn," a new two-part comedy of circus life; Haydn, Burns and Haydn, three clever entertainers; Northlane Ward, in lively songs and dances; Brandon & Booth in a comedy in a series of character songs; Three Sisters, wonderful dancers; Mary Pickford in one of her latest pictures; the Boston Theatre Topical Review, and as a special feature, exclusive pictures of Lillian Walker and Mayor Curley touring Boston.

"Hesper of the Mountains" is a splendid drama of the Far West, with the scenes laid in Butte, in Montana Mountains. The principal characters are a young illustrator, sent West for his health, and a girl, known as "Hesper," the cowboy sweetheart, a big ranch, and some crooked miners.

A big strike of the miners employed by the mine owners, and the taking of some of the most thrilling moments. Hesper, "the girl with the curls and with the dimples," plays Hesper. Charlie Chaplin was never funnier than in "One A. M." his latest comedy hit.

NORUMBEGA PARK—Two capacity audiences greeted Whitcomb's Concert Band in the recitals that organization will give consecutive days in the theatre at Norumbega Park yesterday. The band was assisted by Miss Louise Reynolds, soprano, who contributed the big song several excellent numbers, and by John Thomas, a humorist, who has amused thousands of people.

Every indication points to the fact that "musical week" at Norumbega Park is to be a red letter event. The patronage these first matinee shows arranged for the concerts proved a great success.

VILLA NAPOLI—The August weather is proving again how popular a resort is the Villa Napoli at Nantasket Beach. Situated on the high hill overlooking the entire beach with its cool breezes to constantly sweeping across its spacious plazas and open dining hall comfort is positively assured from the start. The cuisine of delectable Italian and French dishes, as well as the chicken lobster dinners for which it is famous, provide in efficient manner for the inner man.

ST. JAMES THEATRE—With one of the breeziest acts on the vaudeville stage, Loew's St. James Theatre has a bill this week that features topped by the Hippodrome Four in "Dinkelspiel's Night School." They are a quartet of singers and comedians that make fun and music run riot while they are on the stage. Another big feature is the Conrads, who present a singular act that is in every way a vaudeville classic. The balance of the bill includes Lucianna Lucca, a man of many talents in a unusual offering; McDermott and Wallace, a pair of Boston favorites; Gallagher and Gallagher, in song and skill, and others. Chief on the photo-play portion of the film is Charlie Chaplin in his newest farce, "One A. M."

MAJESTIC THEATRE—It was the old story of the unexpected yesterday at the Majestic Theatre, where that daring photo-play workers are in the city, and started in on its sixth successful week, with auditorium, lobby and box office crowded with people whose interest in this remarkable film has not diminished in the slightest. And for this unfailing interest there are a number of very good reasons, not perhaps the least of which is the appeal to the human heart. For "Where Are My Children?" is intensely human with a message to and lesson for all.

REVERE BEACH—The Mile of Merriment at Revere Beach in Massachusetts during this hot weather of all Boston. Nobody is too old or too staid to enjoy the fun that is here. Entertainment devices are for young and old alike, and those who patronize the delightfully illuminated boulevard leave dull care behind. Whether you want to ride on the Loop-the-Loop, the whirling or dashing coasters, to see strange people or curious animals, to witness novel dancing provoking devices you can be satisfied at Revere. The amusements are by the way for a mile and it takes a day to do them.

THE FENWAY THEATRE—That "Hearts Adrift" with Mary Pickford in the principal role will never grow stale was proved by the crowds at the Fenway when great crowds greeted the opening of the play with thunderous applause. Those who have not been to better advantage than in this wonderful play. The showing this week since the opening of the Fenway has been commended more highly and deservedly. It will attract to see "Hearts Adrift" wherever it is properly presented. The continuation of the film is perfect, being a new print just received from the Famous Players studio. The other subjects on the program are good.

PROVINCETOWN TRIPS—The big, roomy boats of the Provincetown Line run on her daily round-trip of 100 miles to Provincetown and return, with a route which is crowded with interesting sights for visitors. The Line leaves Rowes Wharf, Atlantic avenue, at 9 a. m., Sundays at 9:30.

M. S. P. C. A. ACTIVE IN HUMANE WORK

The Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, during July, examined 2,561 animals, heard thirty prosecutions and destroyed 108 horses, and 69,510 horses were watered from the watering stations and traveling water cars of the society.

RUNAWAY THROWS MARGARET WILSON

New York, Aug. 8.—A runaway horse caused Margaret Wilson, eldest daughter of the President; Blanche Bates, actress, and George Creel, writer, to be thrown from their carriage as they were driving to a picnic at the Croton-on-the-Hudson residence of Holbrook Blinn on Sunday.

ESTHER BARRON, eleven-year-old girl who perished today in West End fire. The police are convinced the fire was set.

HELD IN $5,000 FOR FATAL FIRE IN WEST END

PETER Telesky of Ohio street, South End, was arraigned in Municipal Court today on the charge of arson, in connection with the fire in the four-story tenement house at No. 69 Brighton street, West End, where Esther Barron, an eleven-year-old girl, lost her life.

Through an interpreter, Telesky pleaded not guilty. He was held in $5,000 for a continued hearing, and in default of bail was committed to the Charles Street Jail.

The flames imperilled the lives of more than twenty men, women and children living in the block, most of whom were taken down ladders to safety.

The State police are also investigating the fire. They are working on a theory which will be presented to the Grand Jury.

The fire is the first of suspicious origin since the investigation of the so-called "arson ring" a few weeks ago.

The dead child is Esther Barron, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Barron, and the second eldest of their four children.

The father, who is an invalid, had a narrow escape from death, and was hurried to the Relief Hospital, suffering from burns and serious injuries.

When the flames were raging from windows on the third floor, Barron, who occupied the top floor with his family, found helpless from a window and was in imminent danger of being burned to death.

Other fire companies arrived, and seeing the need of immediate search of the building, the firemen made up dangerous stairways, through smoke-filled corridors, into the bedrooms, in search of the occupants.

Ladder Company No. 1 Ladders were quickly thrown up, firemen mounted them, braving the flame and smoke, and Barron was borne to the street and into a police ambulance.

Other fire companies arrived. The firemen hurried up dangerous stairways, through smoke-filled corridors, into the bedrooms, in search of the occupants.

On the top floor, one of them stumbled over a body. It proved to be that of little Esther.

Other firemen found the girl's mother, who had collapsed. She was borne through the smoke to the window, and thence taken down the ladders.

Quickly followed the other rescues.

The Barron family on the top floor consisted of Mr. and Mrs. Barron and the dead girl, her older sister, Ida, seventeen her brother, Victor, six, and sister, Frances, eight. On the first floor lived A. Kruger, his wife, and five children—Samuel, twelve; Joseph, ten; Abbie, eight; Esher, three, and Ida, eight.

On the second floor were J. Wiedershein, his wife, and Beckie, aged sixteen; Max Goretzen, and Louis Fox.

Abraham Goren occupied the third floor with his wife and five children, Dora, twelve, Tillie, ten; Charles, seven; Davie, six, and Morris, two.

STOCKS AND INVESTMENTS

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Stocks were strong in New York at noon, but the market was still dull. Among gains of more than a point or more gain were Greene-Cananea, American Beet Sugar and Consolidated Gas. Activity of the last named issue is attributed to expectation that directors are going to adopt a more liberal policy towards stockholders. J. P. Morgan & Co. have received $2,500,000 more in gold from Canada.

GAINS AND LOSSES.

Gains in New York at 12 o'clock included Anaconda ¼, Kennecott ½, Inspiration ¼, Greene-Cananea 1, Beet Sugar ¼, Consolidated Gas ¼, American Can ¼, Pressed Steel Car ¼, American Smelting ¼, American Locomotive ½, Crucible ¾, Industrial Alcohol ¾, Mexican Petroleum ⅝, Maxwell ¼, Willys-Overland ½, Marine preferred ¾, Canadian Pacific ½, Southern Pacific ¼, Chesapeake & Ohio ¼, Reading ⅝, N. Y. Central ⅝ and Union Pacific ½.

Among declines were Baldwin ½, Distillers ½ and Baltimore & Ohio ¼.

New Haven, Rubber and Utah Copper were unchanged.

A New York dispatch said: "The professional element was surprised to find nearly all important issues in more demand late in the forenoon. There were offerings of Union Pacific, Reading and other standard issues."

COPPERS UP IN BOSTON.

By noon the most interesting thing about the Boston market was the advance of a few coppers, claims at 12 o'clock included Alaska Gold ⅛, Copper Range ¼, North Butte ⅛, Mohawk ⅛, Osceola ¼, Quincy ¼, Tamarack ¼, United Fruit ¼ and Atlantic, Gulf & West Indies common ⅛.

Boston & Maine is off ¼.

FIRM TONE TO CURB.

Most of the active issues on the Boston Curb showed gains at the end of the first hour. Advances included Mojave 1-16, National Zinc 1-4 and United Verde ⅛. Boston & Montana and Cumberland-Ely showed losses were Champion, Gold Lake and Porcupine Premier. The last named and Boston & Montana were among the most active.

LISTLESS AT THE START.

At the opening the New York market was listless as it was at the start yesterday. There was no more breadth to trading or price range than then. While the supply of stocks was small, there was no pressure to sell, and demand for consolidated Gas was the most prominent feature. It advanced more than two points, pending the usual declaration. Rails were very quiet as a class. Anaconda was the only copper that showed any activity, selling first half hour it sold at 80. War order issues were as dull as the stocks. In fact, the listlessness of the market was as pronounced as the effect was pathetic.

Prices were firm in Boston at the in Boston & Maine. Otherwise there opening, with a little odd lot business was no feature except the strength of coppers. But trading in them was limited. Mohawk, Osceola and Quincy advanced a point.

FINANCIAL NEWS IN BRIEF.

Wolverine earnings for the June fiscal year were $12.25 a share. Its production cost was 9.24 cents a pound, it got an average price of 20.62.

The Pere Marquette road, largely owned in New England, reports June increases of $227,197 in gross and $113,292 in net. For twelve months the gain in gross was $3,181,883 and in net $1,898,313. Its surplus after charges increased $1,638,822.

Net sales of Woolworth stores for June totalled $6,521,834, an increase over that 1915 month of $607,100, or 11.99 per cent.

"No Tunnel, No Frenchman," Said England. "Russia Is No Dog for Fleas to Live On," Said Duke Alexis.

Both Know Now That They Were Foolish

Copyright, 1916, Star Company.

FOR many years the English and French have discussed a tunnel to connect France and England. It would not be hard to build such a tunnel, and the uses would be infinite.

Count Ernst Hesse Wartegg lectured here before the Academy of Sciences, other learned men lectured in France, England and elsewhere, telling why the tunnel should be built.

Always the English said: "No. We don't want the French coming at us underground. We are an island, shall REMAIN an island. Our security is in the water that surrounds us."

Now England takes a different view of the matter, and there is serious talk of beginning the building of the channel tunnel as soon as the war ends.

From Calais to Dover is only a little over twenty miles.

The tunnel would make it possible to run trains from Paris to London direct. But that is not what the English are thinking of just now.

If, instead of being near-sighted, they had built the tunnel they would not have been obliged during this war TO DEFEND THE ENGLISH CHANNEL.

There would have been no interruption of traffic between England and France, between London and Paris. The tunnel would have eliminated troopships crossing in danger from submarines. The mails would have been secure. the German problem in the war would have been much more difficult.

Thus we learn again, as we learn on every page of history, that it is foolish always to oppose ANY kind of public improvement.

Now jump from London to Moscow.

An intelligent Frenchman was president of the chamber of commerce in Moscow, and the subject discussed was the building of the Siberian railway. The Frenchman urged that it be made a double-gauge railway, more profitable, more productive, with a greater capacity. As he talked the Grand Duke Alexis looked at him with dull contempt, and, finally, pointing to the earnest Frenchman, said: "Look at that person. He thinks of nothing but profit, how much money can be made. He does not realize that the question of a Siberian railroad is merely one of sentiment; that we are building for sentiment, not thinking of money. He is one of the many who look upon Russia as a dog upon which they, the fleas, may live."

After the war with Japan the Grand Duke Alexis and all the rest of Russia realized that if the Frenchman had had his way, and the Siberian railroad had been a double-track railroad, the war with Japan might have ended otherwise.

The invention of the spinning jenny gave work to hundreds of thousands and increased the pay of all those employed in the industry.

But ignorant workmen tried to destroy the new machines, and it was necessary to build factories like regular forts that the machines might be operated in safety.

The sewing machine freed hundreds of millions of women from the slavery of the needle. Yet the sewing machine was bitterly fought, and the first man who made a sewing machine was persuaded by his wife to destroy it, because, she said, "It will make it impossible for poor girls to earn a living."

In big ways and in little ways, in the sewing machine and in the digging of a tunnel under the English Channel, human beings naturally oppose progress.

What ought to interest US is the fact that the United States is much like others in this respect—and possibly the worst of all.

Our nation is backward in everything. We leave it to the French and Germans to develop the submarine, the flying machine, the automobile.

Ideas that start here in America must go abroad to find encouragement and development.

We do everything piecemeal. When a great city needs a water supply it gets a little at one time and a little another—with graft on each occasion, but never an adequate supply.

One of the many things needed by this country at present is a permanent, big ship waterway from Chicago and the Great Lakes, through the Mississippi, to the Gulf of Mexico, the Panama Canal and all the oceans.

With this great work there could be combined the organization and maintenance of a magnificent standing army of well-occupied men. The enterprise would pay for itself and pay for the men in an industrial army with military training, and we should have preparedness without cost.

But nations, like individuals, fight new ideas. And in place of a great industrial army, carrying out vast national projects, we have a few footsore citizens "hiking" at Plattsburg, and a militia grumbling on the border.

Defects in System of Hardening Recruits

By Woods Hutchinson, M. D.

The World's Best Known Writer on Medical Subjects.

ONE of the logical results of the lack of adequate training in camp hygiene and physical condition among the men, and the insufficient power given to the sanitary and the medical corps in the selection and the equipment of camp sites, is the group of accidents and fatalities which invariably occur when new troops are being "broken in" to camp life. Already the papers are busy with reports of deaths from pneumonia, from heat prostration, from heart failure on ambitious hikes and of attacks of intestinal disturbance from unsuitable or tainted food, or from scanty or polluted water.

Of course, a certain amount of friction is inevitable in assembling and transporting such large bodies of men, and the total fatalities and sicknesses do not bulk very large in proportion to the mass. Indeed, the army officers, who, spurred by the popular outcry, have been inspecting and publicly reporting the results of their own efficiency, quite plume themselves upon the fact that only 2 per cent. of the men are sick or in the hospital. But the point and the pity of it is that these distressing fatalities were practically all preventable if proper care and intelligence had been used, and, moreover, 2 per cent. represents just about the average morbidity for the entire working population, men, women and children, and is nearly double what it should be for a carefully picked and selected body of strong and vigorous men in the prime of life.

The idea of the War Department appears to be that if the men were mustered in in good physical condition, as they claim to have been, they have no business to be sick, and that when it has provided the dry staples of a ration, and a canvas roof to sleep under, it has done all that can be reasonably required. Already philanthropic organizations in the border States are sending out requests for funds to supply facilities for the soldiers, and to supplement their rations, while the New York troops are reported to have raised fifteen thousand dollars among themselves by private subscription to provide their camp with a respectable hospital, their present hospital accommodations (?) consisting of a couple of unscreened tents about a hundred and fifty yards from the camp stables, which is simply an invitation to the plague of flies.

These best precautions and physical breakdowns of various sorts appear to be chiefly due to two causes. One is the inadequate and injudicious character of the training which is given to the militia in times of peace.

Though battles are usually fought outdoors and campaigns conducted chiefly in the open country, nine-tenths of the training of our citizen soldiery is given indoors. Four-fifths of the ideal military training, which would also be ideal for health and efficiency in times of peace, should consist of short hikes and camping and scouting trips in small squads, which could be carried out on week ends and holidays at intervals all through the Spring, Summer and Autumn months. These could be made sometimes carrying shelter and cooking kit, sometimes to permanent camps and route stations, sometimes by train, sometimes by motor, sometimes by boat.

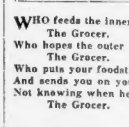
In this way the men would not only greatly improve their health, but become familiar with the country, learn how to take advantage of various forms of transportation under military conditions, how to feed, shelter and take care for themselves in the open, and how to pick tent sites and protect their beds from flood water. Most important of all, they would be kept perpetually in reasonably fit and ready physical condition, their feet hard, their wind good, their muscles springy.

So that when they went into the annual camp or were suddenly called out for active service they would be able to stand a reasonable amount of forced marching, or trench digging or roughing it in bad weather, without falling by the wayside. To lame a man by turning his feet into one mass of blisters or give him rheumatism and neuritis by sleeping in the mud, or knock him out on his first hike by heat prostration, is neither an intelligent nor an efficient way of getting him quickly into good marching trim.

The Grocer

By William F. Kirk

WHO feeds the inner man each day?
The Grocer.
Who hopes the outer man will pay?
The Grocer.
Who puts your foodstuff in a sack
And sends you on your homeward track
Not knowing when he'll see you back?
The Grocer.



WHO gets fresh eggs and fruit each day?
The Grocer.
Who gets more promises than pay?
The Grocer.
Who listens to your daily roar,
Your threats to try another store
Without a sign that he is sore?
The Grocer.

WHO closes up each night and sighs?
The Grocer.
Who goes to bed with heavy eyes?
The Grocer.
Who walks all day from aisle to aisle
And seldom gets a pleasant smile?
Who longs to stop and rest awhile?
The Grocer.

HE tries to do the best he can,
The Grocer.
He's kinder than the average man,
The Grocer.
When days are hot and tempers flame
And wild words take the place of tame,
Who nearly always is to blame?

The Praise of Farming

It Is Man's Noblest and Most Healthful Vocation, and It Leaves Him Plenty of Time and Opportunity for Cultivating Himself as Well as His Fields

By Garrett P. Serviss

IF, like many young men whose requests for advice I read, I stood in the morning of life, but possessed of the experience that, in its evening, illuminates, like a sunset, the road behind, I think that I should choose agriculture for my vocation. I was born among farmers, and farmers who have never left their fields are among my most faithful and most admired friends. So I can speak with knowledge of farm life. There never has been a time in the history of our country when such speaking was more needed.

One of the gravest errors that can enter the minds of young people is the widespread belief that farm life and farm work are incompatible with the best development of the social and intellectual qualities of men and women. If I did not know that it is untrue I should not have made such a statement as the one with which I began this writing. I would shrink with horror from any occupation that shut me off from mental exercise, books, study of nature and of man, converse with intelligent fellow creatures and social enjoyment. Life on the farm does not shut off any of these things, while to some of them it gives double value.

Many of the most successful young farmers now are "college men." Their preliminary intellectual training equals that of lawyers, doctors, bankers and merchants in the cities, and no more than these are they prevented by their work from pursuing the intellectual avocations which every well-endowed mind should have in addition to the vocation which is the main stem of life.

It is through these avocations, these "side issues," that half, and sometimes much more than half, of a man's influence over his fellows, and upon his times, is exercised. The vocation is the trunk of the tree, which establishes it in its place and gives it individuality and stability; the avocations are the branches and the leaves, the flowers and fruits, which are useful and pleasant to others as well as to itself.

Now, for some concrete examples among farmers. I know a man, eighty-five years of age, whose formal education was obtained within the walls of a "district school," who has never been off the farm, except for occasional visits to towns and cities, who, in his active years, exercised the industry and frugality that are necessary in every occupation and that never fail to insure the acquirement of independence, and who now is one of the wisest men in all my acquaintance.

He is abreast of the times. If he has not read novels, he has read newspapers and solid books. He has not neglected his Winters, when farming is play. Last Summer I got from him in a few vernacular sentences sounder judgments on the European war and on our own political affairs than I have heard from anybody else. He has never had any vocation but that of a farmer, yet he is as truly in touch with all the world as the best-informed city man that I know.

If he had gone to the city when young he would have become a rich merchant or a successful lawyer, and would probably have died and been forgotten years ago. But on the farms people live longer and are remembered longer.

He, at least, bids fair for ten years yet to enjoy the aroma of the same dewy hay-fields that he mowed when a boy, and to listen to the tinkling music of the same bob-o-links that then entranced his ears at sunrise. Has he lost anything by staying in the country among the green hills within sound of the romantic Schoharie roaring down its rapids and scooping out cool, deep pools for fish in the lee of its huge boulders?

And now, a more modern instance. In that same land, which the red Iroquois loved for its beauty and its gifts, I know a young farmer, descended from a line of farmers, a university graduate, instilled with the knowledge of scientific agriculture, armed with the best and most ingenious implements and accessories that invention, aided by steam and electricity, can furnish, whose farm is as instructive and interesting to visit as any shop or factory or store in existence, and where the visitor feels that, far from having left the world behind him, and plunged into a side current of existence, he has rather found a centre of life, society and intelligence of the most refreshing and inspiring kind.

His wife is also a college graduate, a woman of beauty, cultivation, refined tastes, wide reading. They have their automobiles, their telephones, their instrumental music, their newspapers, books, and social relations. To converse with them is a privilege and a pleasure. Their children live in the free, fresh air, and are sent to schools where the "advantages," I suspect, are greater than in the great city schools. They would not exchange farming for any vocation that you could offer them. Farming is working with nature. It came in with Adam, and it keeps Adam's descendants as close to Paradise as man can get.

August

By Jane McLean

AUGUST peered and laughed at me
From the white birch wood;
Swung her hand and chaffed at me—
Mocked me where I stood.
August with the eyes of flame,
August never quite the same,
Lured me, whispering my name
From the white birch wood.

August's fingers, white and cool,
Held the boughs aside;
Plunged her hand within a pool,
Flung the wet drops wide.
Eagerly I bade her stay,
But she, panting, fled away,
And her laughter, sweet and gay,
Floated back and died.
